Scene opens with each character standing or sitting behind a microphone. Scripts can be on music stands in front of actors. Big Foot is a normal-looking person. Peppy instrumental music - play a few seconds then fade out. Thank you to the Wink Winkerman Orchestra, as always, for showing us that the sound of music and the sound of someone choking a frog can be almost identical. My guest today is "well, it says here that you claim to be Big Foot? How do you know, Wink? There are movies and video tape. Of me wearing my Big Foot costume. Are you saying Big Foot dresses up like "Big Foot? I mean, would YOU be scared of somebody who looked just like everybody else? No, I guess not. Big Foot has a JOB? I have bills to pay just like everyone else. That may be, but when the rent is due, I either pay up or have to go live in the woods. I thought you DID live in the woods. That was before I got a job. Sure beats calling me Mr. My short-term memory is not very good. On the other hand, I could be a monkey groomer in a pet store. This is really getting strange. Or possibly a mattress tester. OK, this is officially ridiculous! That sounds like a pickle factory! OK, could be a pet store! On and on it goes, for hours on end. I think you may be right. You could very well be a mattress tester. No, actually Wink, I just remembered. It makes sense when you think about it. Wink, I want to thank you for helping me remember where I work. Glad I could be of assistance. Establish then fade under WINK: This is Wink Winkerman. Until then, good day. Plays while actors take their bows. All My Gallstones Setting: The scene opens with Dr. Einstein and Nurse Monella standing. Jack Hammer is sitting. Announcer stands off to one side of stage. Microphone for Announcer , stethoscope for Dr. What seems to be the problem? I was kind of hoping you would tell ME. Oh, well, I have several. Raises fingers of one hand as if counting. Generally speaking, I hate all that stuff. What brought you here? Do you want me to go get her? I mean, not right now. I used to work in construction. What did you do? I operated a jackhammer. And you no longer do that? I had to quit. Guess I was allergic or something. Jack, this is Nurse Sally Monella. Now, open your mouth. There she goes with the taking again! Einstein can figure out what is wrong with you. What are you doing here, then? I just came to be with my wife. If your wife had the appointment, why did YOU come into the examination room? I was looking for the bathroom! Einstein, I think I have a tickle in my throat. How do you know, Jack? Well, I keep wanting to laugh, but so far nothing has been funny. If you are sending out holiday party invitations you will most certainly be looking for some great Christmas games to play during your celebration. Our party experts have put together a list of 7 super fun Christmas games that mix in classics and new ideas to keep your holiday parties full of fun. Let it snow Christmas card by PurpleTrail. Wrap it up Wrap a small trinket or piece of holiday candy up as many times as you can. Spare no tape or ribbon. The goal is for it to be difficult to open. Then get a pair of, oversized, work gloves. Each guest gets 30 seconds to try and unwrap the gift while wearing the gloves. Have a small prize for the winner. Holiday Charades Divide guests into two teams. Have each person write down on a slip of paper something to act out regarding the holidays. Christmas Trees, Caroling, Ebenezer Scrooge. Then, each player takes turns drawing from a hat and has 2 minutes to act out what is written for their team. Laughter is guaranteed with this game! The group then votes on which statement is the lie. Holiday Pictionary Pin up some large pieces of paper The back of wrapping paper works great and divide the guests into teams. Create cards with holiday related people, places, objects, or actions. Each person gets a turn as the artist. The two artists from each team get the same card to draw. Set a time limit 2 min and then which ever team guesses correctly first wins. Telephone Play the telephone game with adults and you will be surprised how much fun this childhood game can still be! The beauty of this game is its simplicity. The simpler your Christmas games are, the more likely people are to get involved and join the party! Photo courtesy of Jonathan McIntosh. Word Find Using Christmas words; like Poinsettia, snowflake, and candy cane; have each guest try to create as many smaller words as they can within a set time limit. Give the winner a small prize. A fun and simple Christmas game idea! Snowman Building Contest Do you live in an area with lots of snow? If your answer is yes, then try this game. Have all of your guests try their hand at snowman building. When everyone finishes building their snowman, appoint several judges to determine the winning sculpture. To play, divide your guests up into teams and start asking questions. The team who answers the most questions correct wins! Give a small prize to the winning team. Add questions that fit your guests interests and age group. Who played buddy in the movie Elf? Which state was the first to recognize Christmas as an official holiday? At Christmas, it is customary to receive a kiss under a sprig of what? Which year were electric Christmas lights first used on trees? Which state was the last to make Christmas an official holiday? Which star led the Magi to Jesus?

Full of humor, funny action and deep meaning, but with no lines to learn, these short series of skits will excite your actors and tickle the viewers. Inspired by "How The Grinch Stole Christmas, this is a short yet powerful presentation guaranteed to bring a smile to their lips and a tear to their eyes! It can be done as a dramatic reading or acted out to the recording or live narration. Done by many for Christmas, it can be done at any time for a short presentation if you want something simple but very moving. Another great last-minute skit since it can be acted out to the narrated recording! Our all-time most popular short Christmas script! You do your own lines and the CD supplies the background music and sound effects. Looking around for the perfect short comedy Christmas skit for that holiday banquet or service? Well, look no more! It has been our most popular short Christmas skit so far. This one can be done simply by just two people! The Holiday Helpline is set up to help people facing despair, despondency and depression during the holidays. But without the Lord, what hope can the counselor give? Funny and effective, with a powerful salvation scene. A short, VERY easy to do skit that needs only one person onstage with the script on a laptop , and one offstage on a microphone! This may be the ultimate last-minute Christmas skit! This one is a favorite of those that have done it! Under observation by the unseen angel assigned to him, department store clerk Nick is drafted to be a fill-in Santa. Enduring demands and abuse by the kids in line, his holiday cheer melts like a snowflake on a griddle. But then he gets the best present he ever received, from the most unlikely source; a little girl on his knee who shows him where the true joy of Christmas comes from. Kids and adults can be part of this one! This one is different, in that you get to produce a "live radio show" right in front of the audience! It also combines the fun of a puppet skit by making one of the characters a puppeteer. About 15 minutes long. Looking for longer full-length plays, but still with no lines to learn? They have been extremely popular with visitors, and literally many thousands of churches have done them with fantastic success. Go to the script page to see them!

Chapter 4 : Funny Skits for Senior Citizens | LoveToKnow

Christmas Skits. Christmas parties are a great time for short skits and there is a wealth of material to be used in classic holiday stories. The story of the nativity is a popular skit for children to re-enact at holiday parties, and it is such a well-known story that it requires very little preparation.

Elf 2 and Elf 3 The audience for this play could be kids, families, or adults. Regift Click to download Regift. This short, minute play is set in an office. He tries to regift it several times, but no one else really wants the gift either. The characters in this play will be familiar to anyone who has ever worked in an office environment and include: The boss The brown noser The nerd This play is best for an adult audience because children may not understand the office antics. A Christmas Reunion This play , from Apples4theteacher. Several songs are within this play, so have a piano or other accompaniment available. Although not overtly comical, children will get a kick out of seeing storybook characters interact with holiday figures. This would be a good play for a school group to do. Use old sock puppets, make your own out of paper bags, or find plush animal puppets to use for this free skit. This is a good play to perform for a preschool or at church. The lines are short and easy to remember, and little to no expensive props, sets, or costuming is needed. You could even expand on the skit with your own funny lines in a similar fashion to incorporate the number of kids you have in your group. Nicholas This play would work well for any group, including adults. The lines are a little too advanced for grade school children to memorize, but they would still enjoy viewing the play. The play centers around Santa trying to fill stockings and leave presents, but with a humorous twist. Behind the Pageant This short play is a light-hearted look at a Christmas production, but from backstage. The characters have the wrong costumes and anything that can go wrong will go wrong. This is well suited for adult actors. A Christmas Crisis This play follows a group of people on a night when a bus breaks down. This play is suitable for adults and needs adult actors as the lines are more involved. Requirements of Free Plays Using a free play requires no money to be initially invested in the production. The kind of activity and group you have will often require different things out of free plays. Your Sunday school class will need to perform an easy Nativity story; the school holiday musical may want to put on a short play of Christmas around the world; and your adult book group may want to seek out something more theatrical to present at the library. Make sure the comedy included is appropriate for the group and audience before making a final selection and read the terms and conditions before downloading the work. Was this page useful?
