I was reluctant in the beginning because 8 hours a day, 5 days a week seemed like so much but it turns out that it was exactly what he needed. When we go to restaurants he orders his own food. At the wedding, not only did he do a fantastic job, he was spoken to by several people he had never met before and he responded appropriately to each person and was able to carry on a conversation. In fact, I use to take my cellphone in to sales calls because I needed to be available to go get him at a moments notice. The piece of mind I now take for granted, to an extent, when I drop him off is a true godsend. Everyone their seems genuinely interested in my son and his successes. I cant say enough for what your staff has done for our son myself and his mother! His communication and language skills have vastly improved, which has resulted in far fewer tantrums since he is better able to communicate with us what he wants or needs. He responds to his name usually on the first or second time we call to him, whereas this summer it sometimes would take us saying his name up to ten times until he faced us. I could go on and on, but the number one thing we want to thank the Lighthouse staff for is loving our child. Two years ago, on December 3rd, Lexi began her journey with your team. I was nervous, excited, scared, and hopeful all at the same time. Every question I had about our choice to bring her to you was running wild through my thoughts: Would you understand her? Could you help her grow? Would you recognize her hidden intelligence? Would she be accepted? Would the staff love her and care for her the way we had always envisioned? We had no idea what to expect. We were all frustrated and lost. Fast forward these short months and WOW! Ethan is a completely different kid! He expresses what he wants! He plays with his brothers and sister. He even looks for which sibling he wants! Each one has something different to offer him. Now when we play Mario, he tries over and over again to jump on something until he gets it, so impressive! He was flying into daily rages and was harming himself and us. Fast forward to today, and we see a completely transformed child. As you all know, we moved to South Bend from Hawaii just over 5 years ago. The spirit of aloha infuses LACand all that goes on within its walls. With your help and hard work you see to it that Hunter can achieve his goals and you help him learn new and exciting things every day. Please know that we are so grateful to all of you and appreciate your selfless work. There are 3 areas that stand out to us and are in no particular order. Hands down you guys have gotten him to eat food we never could. He continues to identify actions with words.
