The Bible on stewardship: That is, no more than with life itself do we have this as something we can earn or deserve. It is not entitlement but blessing in which others are meant to share see Genesis He is not about to make an offering to God that, in effect, costs him nothing. Restoration of this commitment will issue in "overflowing blessing" for all. Where the one is, the other is also. We easily pretend otherwise, making faith immaterial or money unspiritual. It is in the use of what we have, not the amount, that we learn and practice, or practice and then learn still more, the abundance already ours. Less is more when what we give exceeds what we withhold. All you are unable to give possesses you" see note 14 to Chapter 1. Those who "store up treasures for themselves" v. Real security is found? There is no way to acquire money that is pure and perfect, unsullied by questionable means and motives. That should not become a pious excuse to avoid responsibility for its wise use. Their most important quality, given the challenge involved, is fidelity, faithfulness? It is the "genuineness of love" in response to the joy of life made known in Jesus Christ that makes us eager to give "according to what one has? Also emphasized see v. So Paul says in these verses that "generosity" is part of the "fruit" of the Spirit. It is impossible to turn on the lights of greater giving when the power is off Morale, or what the church calls Spirit, is "the power that turns on the lights"? Paul sees himself as making this "mystery" plain. He prays that the power of God at the heart of life? To "take hold of the life that really is life" v. Not being rich or money, but "the love of money" is "a root of all kinds of evil" v. That love fuels insatiable desire, makes for unhappiness, and reduces the blessing of life to something we must gain rather than seek to share.
