Karl-Anthony Towns played one of his best games of the season, posting 30 points, 14 rebounds, five assists and five blocks in the win. They have been impressive at home, winning ten of their 15 games in Minnesota. They will expect to grab another home victory on Saturday when they host the struggling Suns. Phoenix have lost five in a row after going down to Toronto on Wednesday. The absence of Devin Booker was strongly felt as his starting replacement in Josh Jackson shot on his way to a stat line of two points and one rebound in 22 minutes of action. Troy Daniels was their best player, scoring 32 points on shooting off the bench. Three keys to the game Will Phoenix persist with Jackson at the two? Timberwolves at home â€” Minnesota have been a substantially better team at home this season, going compared to on the road. They score over three more points per possessions in Minnesota, and a net rating of 3. Points in the paint â€” Phoenix are the third worst team in the league at defending in the paint, allowing Minnesota will be licking their lips at the prospect of facing this interior defense. Matchup to watch Josh Jackson vs Andrew Wiggins â€” A couple of young stars will go head to head at the shooting guard position in this game. As mentioned, Jackson has been having his struggles since replacing Booker, but Phoenix will probably persist with him as a starter. Wiggins is a flawed player who does not appear to have improved significantly during his time in the league. This season he puts up The former number one pick has plenty of talent though, and is far more developed than his Suns counterpart. He had 18 points when the sides last met. Betting tip The oddsmakers are leaning heavily in the direction of Minnesota here, giving Phoenix an It is always difficult to bet on a team to win by such a large margin, but the Timberwolves are impressive at home and Phoenix are really struggling. With all their talent, the Timberwolves should be able to put their foot down early and put the game beyond reach relatively early. Tip-off is at 8pm ET. Who will win this game at the Target Center?
