In the field of natural gas the volume traded on the EEX amounted to TWh, an increase of 46 percent compared with the previous year. The volume in trading in emission allowances amounted to. The physical delivery of power takes place on the next day. This market can be used to satisfy short-term needs of electricity or to sell short-term over capacities. Participants in the market can buy up to 45 minutes before every hour electricity for the specific hour. The electricity for the next day can be traded from. On the Spot Market, companies can trade natural gas on a continuous basis for the current day within day, one day and two days in advance as well as for the following weekend. EEX offers also a spot market for EU allowances. Since, EEX operates both spot and derivatives markets in emission allowances. All trading participants admitted to trading in emission allowances on EEX are able to take part in the auction without any further preconditions regarding licensing. From the very beginning, this also included all trading participants taking part in the existing Eurex cooperation on the Derivatives Market. Derivatives market[edit] Participants on the EEX can trade power contracts weeks, months, quarters, years up to 6 years in the future. GoOs are certificates which confirm that a given Megawatt Hour of power has been generated from renewable resources. These are exclusively issued for disclosure and transparency purposes and they are cancelled upon use. Guarantees of Origin can be traded up to three years into the future. There are two maturities per year. EEX offers three products on the Derivatives Market: This service enables the trading participants and the trade registration participants to conclude transactions through registration by mutual agreement or to have over-the-counter transactions registered. The platform was established by EEX and the four German transmission system operators and launched in October. EEX is in charge of the operation of the platform, which comprises plausibility checking, anonymisation, aggregation and publication of the data reported.

In a relationship, one takes control and the other power. Jazmine knew this all too well and remembers them. Thank you to everyone who has read Tis the Season. Anyways onwards with Power Exchange! Again read, review and enjoy! I do not own Boondocks. All rights go to the rightful owners. This story contains sexual interactions and coarse language. You have been warned. Huey and Jazmine looked down at a little black and white Boston Terrier growling at him. Huey let out a high whistle. Moki stopped barking and sat down on the floor. Huey gave him a treat that was on the counter. Huey watched Jazmine leave. He had no idea what was happening to him or her. But something had to be done about it. And he needed to find her and fast. Tito gave him a look of concern when he headed upstairs. Jazmine was most likely on route home and that is where he was heading. Huey stared at him looking right at him. Huey let out everything onto his face until other Doms were pulling him off of Cairo. Cairo was threatening to press charges, making the owner of the club to come out. He got what he deserves," Huey said angry, "and as for the safety of my sub. I thought it was a protocol that if anything happens to an already taken submission if threaten than they could go into a safe room in the back? Cairo has coming onto my submission for years now and she had every right to hit him. Cairo got what he deserve and headed out. Fuck his meeting, fuck the club and fuck Cairo. He needed to know if Jazmine was alright. But when he arrived at the house, it seemed cold and angry. Huey ran up the stairs to see if she was in her room. Huey picked up the letter and reading it. He saw the tear marks on the paper knowing that she was sad. He never thought that it would all be coming down to this. Huey ended up destroying his house. Everything but her bedroom. Because she left, and he had no idea how to find her. But the bartenders should have known something was off with the situation. She would have left him alone. I wanted you to relax and enjoy yourself instead of dealing with one of my business associates. If I was smarter than I would have brought you with me but put you in a place where I could keep an eye on you. At the time, I thought the bar would be alright. I know you would have had a drink and watch the performances and I would deal with the meeting. You were going to punish me for protecting myself," she said. I was proud that you protected yourself. My associate commented on you and your behaviour, telling me how disrespectful you were and how he would have handle it. I do hope one day you can forgive me because that was not me that night. It had been three weeks since she walked away and all he could feel was the pain of losing her. He saw the destruction he did over the weeks. The chandelier was on the floor, furniture was tossed and laying sideways or upside down and many holes in the wall due to Huey kick and punching them. But all he could feel was the pain because all he could see was Jazmine everywhere. Because there he saw his old Master. Bushido looked around the room taking in all of the damage. You know I like to meet them. Well I wonder what happen," Bushido said, "because I got a call from another Dom at the club, stating that you beat the living shit out of Cairo. Then the owner of that club removed your membership due to a fight. And there is the matter of your submission in question. Because he knew he was being selfish but he wanted to keep Jazmine to himself. Did you make sure she was alright? She left that night. I know you Huey and I have the feeling that somehow you fucked up. What did you do and you better tell me what happen. Things were fine until she sub drop," Huey said. When did this happened and what did you do? I gave her space, talked with her and thought she was alright. Huey fell to the floor with his cheek in pain. Shit where did he get the whip from? Listening to his old master telling him what could be happening to Jazmine, Huey took his punishment with no protest from Bushido. The look of concern was well written on her face. If this girl is mentally unstable because of him-" They heard Huey choked on that statement. Tears were coming from his eyes but Huey felt the failure of his decision. He should have done something. Extremely rare and I was too selfish keeping you to myself that I had no one else there to see the signs," Huey said. We were both fucked up so bad by our emotions that it failed. Our trust, communication and our drive. I could only imagine what you were thinking. Other subs were getting ready to submit to you. I heard them in the bathroom," she said. Huey ran his hands over his face. He was in deep thought on everything Huey told them. How he met Jazmine when they were young, from firing his last housekeeper to the idea she gave him. Finding Jazmine at the club and everything they have done. Even that fateful day in the woods together. He never needed to date because being a Dom was the right path. Because you get all of you needs met. He just lost someone he loves and you are telling him to date? Huey knows the truth of his emotion. Thus dating other women would be a good start. But there will be no one else. You were young when you enter it. You needed it because of the situation you were forced into. What are you going to do when she wants those things? What if she wanted that? Because he knew that all they had was each other. I started dating, finding out what I wanted in a vanilla relationship as I was trying to find you," Huey finally confessed, "than I started thinking about our time together and noticing that you wanted some aspect of a normal relationship. But something was holding you back and that is the reason why you left. Jazmine breath caught in her throat. That I love you? There are other ways to options that aspect of my life. Have dinner with me tomorrow night?
