That'll Do - From 'Babe: Pig In The City - Performed by The Black Dyke Band - Duration: Black Dyke fan's 4, views.

Protected by Angels In , variations of the following story were being sent around anonymously through email Diane, a young Christian university student, was home for the summer. She had gone to visit some friends one evening and the time passed quickly as each shared their various experiences of the past year. She ended up staying longer than she had planned and had to walk home alone. As she walked along under the tall elm trees, Diane asked "God" to keep her safe from harm and danger. When she reached the alley, which was a short cut to her house, she decided to take it. However, halfway down the alley she noticed a man standing at the end as though he were waiting for her. Instantly a comforting feeling of quietness and security wrapped around her, she felt as though someone was walking with her. When she reached the end of the alley, she walked right past the man and arrived home safely. The following day, she read in the paper that a young girl had been raped in the same alley, just twenty minutes after she had been there. Feeling overwhelmed by this tragedy and the fact that it could have been her, she began to weep. Thanking the Lord for her safety and to help this young woman, she decided to go to the police station. She felt she could recognize the man, so she told them her story. The police asked her if she would be willing to look at a lineup to see if she could identify him. She agreed and immediately pointed out the man she had seen in the alley the night before. When the man was told he had been identified, he immediately broke down and confessed. The officer thanked Diane for her bravery and asked if there was anything they could do for her, she asked if they would ask the man one question. Diane was curious as to why he had not attacked her. She had two tall men walking on either side of her. Follow the link below to read more about that account!

Although it starts with a near tragedy, it unfolds to a sort of divine intervention. I share this with anyone who doubts goodness in the world. To those who question fate, guardian angels, inter-connectedness, God, higher powers, Synchronicity, the power of the universe, animal angels, Rainbow Bridge, or any other belief. To those who bear witness to the horrors of war, animal abuse, or the myriad of negative things in the world. To those who have lost hope Her neck was crooked backwards, her eyes wide with fear, as she faced this huge white monster that was about to crush her. My screams competed with the sound of traffic traveling 55 miles an hour in the four lanes of traffic on Pacific Coast Highway. The passenger of the car screamed too, "Oh my God, a dog! She disappeared behind another vehicle as I frantically opened my car door to get out. My friend Bill ran into the highway, holding his hands up to stop traffic. By the time I was outside my car, Bill was holding her in the middle of the road. It had only been seconds, but felt like an agonizing lifetime. I called out her name, and her eyes turned from fear to relief as she saw me. Bill opened his arms, and she ran to me. I clutched her tighter than ever before as tears streamed down my face, as I said over and over again "She almost got hit by a car". I had both Rina and Ricochet with me. My friend Dave, who handles Ricochet in the water, and his son, Austin met us there. It was about Once on the beach, Dave took her leash off so she could run with the other dogs. But instead, she ran back up the long ramp leading to the sidewalk. She pulled out from her collar, and bolted back up the ramp, past the bluffs, past the sidewalk, and into Pacific Coast Highway. My friend Bill was in the car in front of me, and had gotten out to chat with me while we waited in the long line of cars. All of a sudden, we saw Ricochet dart into the highway. I felt like I let her down, and agonized over how she was feeling in her desperation to find me. I struggled with guilt, and the "what ifs". And, then it hit me I found solace in knowing there were guardian angels at work, stopping the car, and giving her the quick reflex she needed to dodge the SUV. I felt she was spared to continue helping others. Her work is not finished. I was now grateful she was a submissive dog that used submissive body language as a way to escape the vehicle. But the very submissiveness I disliked Another lesson in acceptance! I thought the story was over, and I was just left with the horrific image of her almost getting hit playing over and over in my mind, and to obviously be more careful. All I can do is share the story with you, and allow you to interpret it, name it, utilize it, and ponder it for yourself. Share it with others who need reassurance and hope. But she zipped and zagged and went behind our car. I did not know who the little dog was at the time - but she looked so scared. I prayed she would be ok and so happy to know she is! She described it as "There was a large vehicle, dark in color driving in the lane closest to the beach, and slightly ahead of us in the lane near the center divide. They laid on their horn and slammed on the brakes. Out the corner of my eye I saw a dog, she was running in front of the car next to us. We moved a little ahead of the car next to us now, because they slammed on their brakes. At that moment, I saw her running, and it looked like she was going to go right under our front tire. If she escaped the front tire, then the back tire would hit her for sure. It appeared that she was going to go under our car. I closed my eyes, and braced for a thump, but Thank God!! What a wonderful silence. Cars were moving very slowly in the northbound lanes, and as we drove south it appeared she made it. There were so many people and dogs on the sidewalk I knew somebody would grab her. I am so very happy Ricochet is ok. And I know our angel was with us too, keeping Ricochet from our tires, because that would have been too terrible to bear. Teri and Danny had other plans on Sunday, but at the last minute they fell through. They discussed options of where to go with their two golden retrievers, Maggie and Molly. Huntington Dog Beach was 4th or 5th on their list. She told Danny, "I want you to watch this". As they viewed the video, It brought tears to both their eyes. Little did they know at the time their path would be crossing with Ricochet in the most frightening way. She now realized the little dog running in the highway was the same dog in the video! An instant bond was formed between the two of us! We both were witness to what could have been a tragedy, but was tempered by our individual guardian angels working together. We shared a celestial connection! Another connection came into play as well. Were guardian angels already preparing for their future convention on Pacific Coast Highway back then? And yet another connection. She could relate because her son was run over by a car when he was 14 months old, and ended up with a spinal cord injury, rendering him quadriplegic. Her son is Patrick, the first boy Ricochet ever surfed with on August 20, He was also her first fundraiser. Patrick the Miracle Dog who was abused and almost lost his life. He is now thriving and doing well. But her journey has gone full circle Both Ricochet and I survived life threatening events I believe I was protected just like Ricochet was I had no symptoms of heart disease. I had no idea I could drop dead at any moment from four blocked arteries and a valve that needed to be replaced. Those who are protecting us identified the problem so I could have it fixed And now I believe Teri and Danny were chosen to be in their vehicle at that precise moment. I believe every single person and animal connection that played out over the last 21 months was perfectly chosen and guided. Ricochet, Teri, Danny and Dog Bless were guided by their guardian angels that day This journey has definitely come full circle!! I know, without doubt Spring back; spring away from an impact. Some may say these were all coincidences. What do you believe? The power of the universe? Oh, and by the way Ricochet has worn a harness or limited slip collar ever since! My parents died when I was 22 years old. My dad in October, and my mom on xmas eve. I struggled for many, many years wondering why they were taken so early. Thank you to ALL the guardian angels, angel animals from Rainbow Bridge, human, and spiritual beings that intervened that day! I definitely feel the incredibly powerful energy leading this journey! Today is August 9, I felt compelled to post this story again today That she was chosen to be a messenger to millions of people around the world. If you are reading this right now You are on this page right now for a reason. It seems each anniversary is met with a milestone challenge. I think these challenges are brought about by the Divine so Ricochet can reach out, and invite you to be part of her life of helping others. We are very blessed to have you on this journey with us!

Chapter 3 : (ca.): Protected by Angels | Anomalies: the Strange & Unexplained

Protected by Angels As I continue to work with the Angels, I get visual reminders and memories of times that the Angels were guiding me and protecting me. This morning I received one of those reminders.

Missionary is protected from murderous attackers by the miraculous appearance of 26 armed guards. Another widely-circulated tale about a girl who barely avoids becoming the victim of a rapist also draws upon this theme: This was a journey of two days and required camping overnight at the halfway point. On one of these journeys, I arrived in the city where I planned to collect money from a bank, purchase medicine and supplies, and then begin my two-day journey back to the field hospital. Upon arrival in the city, I observed two men fighting, one of whom had been seriously injured. I treated him for his injuries and at the same time talked to him about the Lord Jesus Christ. I then traveled two days, camping overnight, and arrived home without incident. Two weeks later I repeated my journey. Upon arriving in the city, I was approached by the young man I had treated. He told me that he had known I carried money and medicines. We planned to kill you and take your money and drugs. But just as we were about to move into your camp, we saw that you were surrounded by 26 armed guards. My five friends also saw them, and we all counted them. It was because of those guards that we were afraid and left you alone. The missionary told the congregation the date, and the man who interrupted told him this story: I was about to putt when I felt the urge to pray for you. In fact, the urging of the Lord was so strong, I called men in this church to meet with me here in the sanctuary to pray for you. Would all of those men who met with me on that day stand up? This story is an incredible example of how the Spirit of the Lord moves in mysterious ways. If you ever hear such prodding, go along with it. As a literal account of an actual occurrence, this one has a few implausibilities: The native who had received treatment for his serious injuries and been told about Jesus Christ by a missionary decides to repay the kindness by killing and robbing that same missionary. Even though the attacker expects to find the missionary alone, unarmed, and asleep, he enlists the aid of five confederates to help him overpower his victim. These details are all obvious plot devices: A more plausible version of the same story appeared in the book Touch the World Through Prayer: During the Mau Mau uprising in Kenya in , missionaries Matt and Lora Higgens were returning one night to Nairobi through the heart of Mau Mau territory, where Kenyans and missionaries alike had been killed and dismembered. Seventeen miles outside of Nairobi their Land Rover stopped. Higgens tried to repair the car in the dark, but could not restart it. They spent the night in the car, but claimed Psalm 4: A few weeks later the Higgenses returned to America on furlough. They reported that the night before they left Nairobi, a local pastor had visited them. He told how a member of the Mau Mau had confessed that he and three others had crept up to the car to kill the Higgenses, but when they saw the sixteen men surrounding the car, the Mau Mau left in fear. He called the men of the church, and sixteen of them met together and prayed until the burden lifted. Did God send sixteen angels to represent those men and enforce their prayers? The Reverend John G. Paton, pioneer missionary in the New Hebrides Islands, told a thrilling story involving the protective care of angels. Hostile natives surrounded his mission headquarters one night, intent on burning the Patons out and killing them. John Paton and his wife prayed all during that terror-filled night that God would deliver them. When daylight came they were amazed to see that, unaccountably, the attackers had left. They thanked God for delivering them. A year later, the chief of the tribe was converted to Jesus Christ, and Mr. Paton, remembering what had happened, asked the chief what had kept him and his men from burning down the house and killing them. They seemed to circle the mission station so that the natives were afraid to attack. Only then did Mr. Paton realize that God had sent His angels to protect them. The chief agreed that there was no other explanation. Could it be that God had sent a legion of angels to protect His servants, whose lives were being endangered? In , while I was travelling on horseback in Central China with Mr. Fred Mitchell, we came to a spot that was notorious as a robber hide-out. The missionary accompanying us was keeping a sharp look-out. Suddenly we came upon a body lying beside the path. The victim was obviously not long dead. The brigands had been at work. A few days later I received a letter from my wife, asking whether we had been in any danger on a date and at a time she named. On that particular night she had been suddenly awakened with the strong impression that I was in danger. She rose and prayed until the burden lifted and peace returned. On consulting my diary, I discovered that this midnight prayer synchronized with the time we were passing through the robber-infested area. God heard and answered the prayer for the safety of His servants. Sanders 3 We found yet another example of this sort of tale in a collection of inspirational anecdotes, which had itself reprinted it from a collection. In that tale which is too long to type in here , the tent of two female missionaries serving in Africa is surrounded one night by headhunters. Rather than cower in the dark, they light their lamp and proceed to make and drink tea all night. In the morning, they discover the headhunters have left. Touch the World Through Prayer. Chapter 4 : Angel Coin | eBay

Stephen Rhodes' explores his natural affinity with the Angels theme with the resonating healing harmonies it generates for the listener. Take time, unwind and settle down for a celestial journey of love, peace and tranquility supported by the loving shield of Angel hosts.

While God has the ability to stop evil, we have to remember that we live in a fallen world where we have free will. Because of this, sometimes God works in ways that we do not understand. As believers in Jesus, we are promised a new life covered under the protection of God and His angels in which nothing can ever separate us from His love. We can rest easy knowing that no matter what hardship we face, God is our provider and protector. He sends down His angels to watch over us and protect us from the harm of the world. These angels can give us peace so we can focus on knowing there is a bigger plan that God has chosen us for. Angels have been cited all throughout the bible for their amazing ability to protect those in harm. God will give each of His angels a purpose: Those who are faithful will be under the constant care of His angels. However when citing the Psalm The fact is that God sends His angels to protect those who have committed themselves to His loving care, not to those who want to put Him to the test. In this passage, it is noted that God would send His angels down to His true loyal children and rescue them from danger. His angels will lift us up and keep us from harm if we choose to trust in Him. Because He loves each of us so much, God assigns angels to each of us for our protection. In addition, the angels have direct access to God and are a helpful communication liaison between heaven and earth. Angels are servants of God that carry out His will and work for our good. Here, we are given protection and shelter by the angels by their ability to assist us in our deliverance from sin and being gifted by eternal life in heaven. The Lord was promising the Israelites that they would be guided by an angel to the Promised Land of Canaan. The Israelites were protected during their journey through the wilderness because they trusted in God and His promises. If we trust in God and His plan for us, we will be protected by His angels as we walk throughout life. Angels are a direct way for us to connect with the Lord, so we should accept their protection and trust in their abilities.

Chapter 5 : Protected By Angels | Angels and Prosperity

Protected By Angels. likes. Handmade and personally chosen Angel inspired Jewellery, gifts, crafts charms etc. I can make personal requested.

Follow Protected by Angels As I continue to work with the Angels, I get visual reminders and memories of times that the Angels were guiding me and protecting me. This morning I received one of those reminders. As I tossed and turned this morning, I received one of those reminders as I was trying get back to sleep somewhere around 4 AM. This seems to be the usual time the Angels and other loving beings tend to be able to speak very clear to me when it is time to get a message out and write. After settling in and clearing the random scattered thoughts, I was shown a vision from when I was 16 years old. As I wrote that last sentence, I once again realize how important it is to listen to the inner guidance that we receive. Listening holds the intention of taking action. Although God and the angels and other light beings are in constant contact with us, and us with them, the more conscious we become about that guidance and connection, the happier, the healthier and the more prosperous our lives can be. On the day I was shown in my vision this morning, I remember going and getting my hair cut. At that time I lived with my mother across the street from the beach in a one-bedroom apartment. That day I walked to and from the hair salon. I remember just being lost in my thoughts as I walked home. Not really aware of anything or anyone around me. I was wearing a yellow cotton sundress, one of my favorites. I was thrilled with my haircut, and I felt beautiful that day. The apartment building we lived in at the time had 8 units, four on the bottom and four on the top. The staircase to the upper floor where we lived was on the outside of the building. As I climbed the stairs and was about three quarters of the way up, my happiness turned to great fear. Everything happened so fast, and only after many decades now is it clear to me what happened. I just know now, and only now, that I had a thought and heard the words there is someone behind you. I instantly turned around and began to scream and moved towards the man. I now know that Archangel Michael and other light beings supported me that day. I see myself as having the energy of a knight with sword and shield just like Archangel Michael on that day. I know he was imbuing me with strength and courage to move past my fear. I came at him like a wild animal. I chased him away from the building with my screaming and yelling. I then ran back up the stairs and into my apartment and cried and sobbed. Although the Angels respect our free will and assist us when we give them permission and ask for help, they obviously do their best to protect us from harmful situations. But we need to pay attention. I was protected this day, not because I am special, but because I was obedient to what I was hearing in the moment. Which is called listening in my book! As I remembered this moment from adolescence, I got a little teary. Not from the event itself with the man, but from the love and protection that was given to me that day. As I got teary this morning, the angels told me that my tears were about being worthy. Most of us at some point in our life, have not felt worthy. Often we still have cleanup to do about knowing our worth. In working with the Angels, I have continued to heal and grow and be in a state of worthiness more and more. The Angels and other living beings bathe us in unconditional love. This is the love that fills us. It is this love that allows us to heal our mental thoughts of separation and bring us into a state of being in oneness consciousness. This is our journey home, to ourselves, to love. The same voice of Love that speaks to me, speaks to you. Today, may you listen with a more open heart and take action from a space of knowing that you are worthy and you are loved and you are never alone. Much love to you, Deborah.

Chapter 6 : 9 Bible verses about Angels Providing Protection

Sharon Taphorn, Author of Angel Guidance-Messages of Love and Healing, and Angels, Guides, and Other Realms is an international teacher, healer, writer, author, mystic and guardian of Mother Earth.

He loves writing and the outdoors. You can often find him at the movies or the park. The idea that a guardian angel is watching over each and every one of us can be an enormous comfort. Do you believe in angels? Which of these guardian angel signs have you observed? Let us know in the comments. Angel believers report that a guardian angel may visit you in a dream to let you know that they are watching over you. They may try to deliver some kind of message, or they may simply be reassuring you about their presence. You See Strange Colored Orbs Tayra Lucero for LittleThings If you spot a bright light or a strange colored orb, you might think that your eyes are playing tricks on you. Many claim that these unique lights are a sign that your guardian angel is by your side. This is one of the most common of all the angel signs. Angels are said to put animals and babies at ease. But some claim there are certain cloud shapes that may be signs from your guardian angel. These angel clouds could take the literal form of an angel. But they may also appear in pleasing shapes, such as hearts, or in symbols that are particularly meaningful or personal to you. You Experience A Sudden Change In Temperature Tayra Lucero for LittleThings Similar to a sudden, unexplainable odor, an unexpected change in temperature may be a sign that your guardian angel is at your side. People report these temperature changes in a variety of ways. Some people will feel a strange chill. But others may experience a sudden warmth surrounding them. This distant, muffled sound could be your guardian angel attempting to speak to you, or it may simply be their way of assuring you that they are close. This might just be a sixth sense, or it might be the raising of the hairs on the back of your neck. Many angel believers can sense when their guardian angel is with them. They report that they know someone else is present, even though the room may appear completely empty. This tingling may take the form of sudden warmth, or it may be more akin to when your foot falls asleep. While many may remain skeptics, there are plenty of us out there who believe in the presence and power of angels. Have you experienced any of these angel signs? More Stories from LittleThings.
