

Chapter 1 : My Little Pony: Harmony Quest - Budge Studios™ Mobile Apps For Kids

Quest for Harmony provides a basic understanding of the cultures and spiritual teachings of four Native American nations--Lenape (Delaware), Ani'-Yun'-wiya (Cherokee), Lakota (Sioux), and Dine (Navajo).

They capture ponies in cocoons and smash a magical stained glass window. They also steal the Elements of Harmony, shatter them, and scatter them over Equestria. Six ponies are charged with saving the kingdom. To complete the mission, kids must purchase Rarity, Fluttershy, and Rainbow Dash. For each piece of the window or Element of Harmony, kids chase a Changeling, clearing obstacles and fighting the Changelings as they progress. Sometimes they break a cocoon to set a pony free. Each level requires two or more ponies. Continue reading Show less Is it any good? Kids are given a mind-numbing chase through Equestria, tapping on a button to run, tapping on other buttons to bypass obstacles, and often flinging rocks and other objects at enemies. About 25 percent of the way into the experience, kids are no longer able progress through the story without in-app purchases, making this a demo app masquerading as a free app. Users have few opportunities to make decisions, no customization, and no way to make the experience their own. Parents may want to bypass this one for better offerings by the brand. Continue reading Show less Talk to your kids about Families can talk about violence in games. Why do the ponies throw things at the Changelings? What else could they do other than use violence? Discuss your rules around in-app purchases. Is it OK to buy more content to complete the missions? If so, how much is OK to spend? How do you like this app as compared to other apps you could play? Why, or why not?

"Quest for Harmony is a painstaking investigation of a system of sexual union that Clifford Geertz called "a hippie dream or Falwell's nightmare." Shih's careful account of pre Moso society and his detailed comparison of variations on the Moso visiting system set his book apart from all other ethnographies of Moso kinship.

Friendship is Magic, part 1 and part 2 The Elements of Harmony, from the prologue. The narrator tells that once upon a time, the sisters Princess Celestia and Princess Luna co-ruled the land of Equestria. The eldest, Princess Celestia, used her unicorn powers to raise the sun at dawn, while Princess Luna brought out the moon at night. But over time, Princess Luna grew resentful of their subjects who played in the day but slept throughout the night. One day, she refused to lower the moon and her bitterness transformed her into Nightmare Moon. She vowed to shroud Equestria in eternal night. Reluctantly, Princess Celestia used the magic of the Elements of Harmony to defeat her sister and banish her permanently in the moon. Only then was Princess Celestia able to restore harmony to Equestria. Twilight discovers that the Elements of Harmony, the only source of magic that could possibly defeat Nightmare Moon, are located in the ruins of the "ancient castle of the royal pony sisters" in the Everfree Forest. When they reach the castle ruins, they find five stone orbs that are supposedly five of the Elements of Harmony. Nightmare Moon confronts Twilight Sparkle and smashes the orbs. The Elements of Harmony in action. When all seems lost, Twilight realizes that her friends embody the Elements themselves. Twilight herself represents the element of magic, which only appears when the other five elements are present. The Elements, wielded by the friends, create a rainbow-colored blast of magic that vanquishes Nightmare Moon and returns her to her original form of Princess Luna. The ponies find five Elements of Harmony, which are briefly shown to be six stone orbs. It should be noted that the Elements of Harmony appear different in the prologue and the scene where the friends use the elements. In the prologue, the gems are red loyalty, orange honesty, green generosity, blue laughter, pink kindness, and purple magic. However, when the Elements appear in the flashbacks in Princess Twilight Sparkle - Part 1, they are represented by six gems, red loyalty, orange honesty, purple generosity, blue laughter, pink kindness, and a sixth magenta gem magic in the shape of a six pointed star. Applejack's honesty. Honesty Applejack formerly Princess Luna and later Princess Celestia possesses the element of honesty. When a mountain ledge the friends are standing on crumbles, Twilight clings onto a ledge and is bewildered when Applejack tells her to let go because she is safe. Twilight trusts her and lets go. Rainbow Dash and Fluttershy catch her mid-fall and carry her to safety. Fluttershy's kindness. Kindness Fluttershy originally Princess Celestia possesses the element of kindness. When the friends encounter an angry manebate, they decide to fight it, but Fluttershy calmly approaches it. Pinkie Pie's laughter. For the season one song, see Laughter Song. The friends enter a dense forest of trees with scary faces, but Pinkie Pie laughs and makes funny faces at the trees, causing the faces on the trees to vanish in pink smoke with sparkles. She explains that they can conquer their fears just by laughing at them. Rarity's generosity. For the season four song, see Generosity song. Generosity Rarity originally Princess Celestia possesses the element of generosity. The friends cannot cross a river because a sea serpent, who is upset about his ruined mustache, is agitating the water. Rarity sympathizes with him and cuts off her own tail to repair his mustache. The grateful sea serpent helps them cross the river. The ponies encounter a broken rope bridge stretching across a ravine. Rainbow Dash volunteers to fly over and tie the other end of the bridge, but is confronted by a group of dark ponies who call themselves the Shadowbolts. They flatter Rainbow Dash and invite her to join them as their captain, as long as she abandons her friends. She ties the bridge, letting the others cross. Twilight Sparkle's magic. See also: When her friends come to her aid in the castle ruins, she realizes that they are her friends, and a "spark" within her activates the Elements of Harmony. In Magical Mystery Cure, the crown is shaped differently after Twilight becomes a princess. The element is also redesigned as well; the shines are on the right, not the left, and the large point of the star faces downward instead of upward. She says that she and her sister are no longer connected to the Elements. When she retrieves a box from a chamber that she believes only she can open with her magic, the ponies find that the Elements are missing. Discord hypnotizes the friends into acting contrary to each element they represent. The friends defeat Discord at last. When Twilight reads all her old friendship lessons that Princess Celestia send back, she is convinced that she must harness the power of friendship. She casts a memory spell on her friends, restoring their former personalities. The friends, united, turn him to stone with the magic of the Elements and restore Equestria to its normal state. Under the orders of Princess Celestia, the main six free Discord from his stone prison so they can reform him. Discord schemes to make Fluttershy remove her Element and never use it against him, which she does willingly as a sign of trust and friendship, ultimately swaying him. As a final precaution, Celestia decides to leave the Elements with Twilight in Ponyville. The scrambled Elements of Harmony. To revert these changes, the friends use their talents to help each other out, thereby remembering their own destinies and regaining their cutie marks. With the marks of our destinies made one, there is magic without end. After all the cutie marks are fixed, Twilight finishes writing the spell that caused it. The elements come alive and zap Twilight to a "dream world", where she encounters Princess Celestia. They return to Ponyville, where Twilight transforms into an Alicorn. Her element, different from the others, then becomes her crown [2] and she becomes a princess. The star-shaped gem is positioned lower. Sunset Shimmer steals the crown "the element of magic" hinting to Twilight that something "happens when you bring an Element of Harmony into an alternate world". When Sunset attempts to destroy Twilight, her friends shield her, and the element of magic activates and gives them the power to defeat Sunset Shimmer. Both are engulfed by a rainbow-colored tornado that returns them to their original forms, and both show remorse after their transformation. The tree and the elements were discovered during the reign of Discord thousands of years before the events of the episode, and were the only means the princesses had of defeating him. According to Celestia, the tree controls and contains all that grows in the Everfree Forest and will continue to do so even without the elements in it. During the two-parter, it is discovered that the Tree of Harmony has lost all of its magic. At the climax of Part 2, Twilight and her friends give up the Elements of Harmony and return them to the tree, recharging its magic and returning the forest to normal. Afterward, the Tree of Harmony generates a flower containing a locked box. Initially, violet energy is seen spreading from the central gem of magic and then triggering all the other five elements. Shadow Play - Part 2 In the second part of the season seven finale, the Mane Six take up the Elements of Harmony again and, together with the Pillars of Old Equestria, use their power to banish the Pony of Shadows to limbo after he is accidentally released. It is revealed that each Element of Harmony is a reflection of a similar element represented by each Pillar:
