I have a headache. I have a stomach ache. Elle a mal au bras. Tu as mal au genou? Il a mal aux orteils. However, if someone is causing you pain, use faire mal to hurt plus the indirect pronoun. Tu me fais mal. Ne lui faites pas mal. Elle a les cheveux roux. She has red hair. She is a red-head. Il a les yeux marron. He has brown eyes. How tall are you? How much do you weigh? I weigh 50 kilos. Asking Questions 1 Invert the subject and verb form and add a hyphen. Instead of Vous parlez anglais? But if you invert il, elle, or on, you must put a t between the verb form if it ends in a vowel and the subject for ease of pronunciation. And je is usually only inverted with pouvoir or devoir. Quand tes parents partent-ils en vacances? Or you can use an interrogative with est-ce que and normal word order: Quelle est la date? A quelle heure partez-vous? Quels bagages est-ce que vous prenez? Notice that the forms of quel can also be used in exclamatory sentences. What a beautiful day! Tu ne travailles pas? Est-ce que tu ne travailles pas? The past participle follows. Did you have fun?
