The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention considers the raccoon a major carrier of the rabies virus in the United States, second only to bats. Add to this that raccoons are known to tip over garbage and devour the content, and it becomes understandable why so many people dislike the animal. Raccoons, however, can also be downright hilarious. Their humanlike hands, rambunctious nature, and ability to fit into tight spaces have the potential to result in some very humorous situations. As a result, this article will review ten of the funniest events that have occurred involving raccoons. In April, it seemed like this was happening in real life. Nicholas Avenue in Harlem. Some people were even awoken in the middle of the night to be informed that a tiger was running loose in the area. Shortly after the report, a news crew arrived at the scene to find that there was no tiger in the area. Law enforcement reported a few minutes later that while there had been an animal sighting, it was just a raccoon. How anyone mistook a raccoon for a tiger, however, still remains uncertain. Charles Animal Control center in Louisiana was required to relocate a colony of raccoons in Destrehan because the animals had become addicted to junk food, including cereals, cookies, doughnuts, marshmallows, and candy. The raccoons not only enjoyed the junk food, but they thrived. A spokesman for animal control reported spotting more than 31 raccoons that were between 14 and 18 kilograms 30â€”40 lb. This is an astounding size, considering that the average adult racoon weighs 6 to 10 kilograms 14â€”23 lb. These raccoons were reported to have also lost their fear of humans, which led to the animals walking up to people and looking for food right next to people sitting in parked cars. All of the raccoons were relocated to a safer area, and all of the feral cats were spayed and neutered. At least one person was forced to make his backyard off-limits to humans, fearing for the safety of his grandchildren. Fortunately, everyone was capable of escaping these hostile raccoons without being hurt. The raccoons have been living in the neighborhood since Hurricane Katrina. Overwhelmed with animal problems in the area, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals SPCA recommended that locals in the area obtain the services of local Wildlife and Fishery centers, who, in turn, recommended that natives to the area use paid animal control services. Ultimately, the abandoned house was demolished in an attempt to solve the problem. When Gangwish approached the raccoon, the animal responded by biting him in the calf. In a slightly tragic turn of events to an otherwise humorous story, the football player responded by killing the animal with a crescent wrench. The carcass was subsequently tested for rabies. PETA suggested that all players on the team even take empathy training sessions. Garbage is being raided, and people are being attacked. Raccoons have also spread beyond the country, with some even crossing into the Alps. The animals have not espoused any type of political theory to warrant being called Nazis. Then, the animals would wake up and go through the same sequence over again. Youngstown residents also reported that the raccoons were not afraid of humans and did not readily scare off. Strangest of all, however, is that nearly all of these zombie raccoon encounters occurred during the daytime. The Ohio Department of Natural Resources declined to attribute this strange condition to rabies but instead claimed that the raccoons have a disease referred to as distemper. Fortunately, distemper cannot be transmitted to humans, but it can be spread to dogs. A video of Gunshow that Brown recorded in even went viral, racking up more than two million views as well as commentary by The Tonight Show and Good Morning America. Whether Brown got Rebekah back and what ultimately happened to the raccoon remain uncertain. It remained uncertain exactly who tied the balloon to the raccoon, but city workers in the area reported an unknown man driving up to the animal with a balloon. Some people even speculated that the man had killed the raccoon and had brought the balloon out of guilt because a skunk that was located nearby did not receive a balloon. And so, for several days, a dead raccoon in Boulder remained at the side of the road with a helium-filled balloon fastened around its leg. It should be noted that this was a kinder death than many raccoons receive. Also in, a group of pranksters in New Jersey even went so far as to throw a toilet onto the driveway of a private residence with a dead, frozen raccoon stuffed into the tank. The daring theft was filmed by a man named Peter Jensen, who posted the video on YouTube. After stealing the doughnut, the fate of the Toronto raccoon remains unknown, and he did not appear to attempt a second heist. One night in , a Brooklyn musician was cornered by two fearless, thug-like raccoons near The Pond, off 59th Street and Fifth Avenue. Before being attacked, the woman took a cell phone photo of the animals. In an effort to find safety, Larson ran to the nearby Plaza Hotel to obtain bandages and disinfectant from the concierge. From the Plaza, the singer was taken to Roosevelt Hospital and given 15 rounds of rabies shots in her legs, two in her hip, and one more for each shoulder. She had to go back for more shots later on.
