

Chapter 1 : Research Paper Example On The Impacts Of Social Networking

An Example Helps You Write a Better Argumentative Essay on Social Media. Social media is something every student knows a lot about, that's for sure.

Breed-specific legislation Breed-specific legislation refers to a type of laws and regulations that are passed by a legislative body and is concerned with a particular breed or breeds of domestic animals. This law restricts or bans certain breeds of mongrels depending on their physical appearance, generally because they are perceived to be dangerous types or breeds of dogs such as the pit bull Terrier Pitbulls. This legislation has two sides, that is, restrictions and bans. The breed or dog type ban legislation requires that all the dogs of a particular appearance be totally taken away from the municipality where the prohibition has been employed. According to this legislation, when the deadline for the ban is reached, all the breeds or type of the dogs that are identified as a subject for expulsion are either killed or relocated if there is that option as per the concerned municipal laws and regulation. Based on how the legislation is drafted, the breed-specific legislation may require that owners of the targeted type or breed of dog to do either of the following; he or she can be required to muzzle the dog while in public places, keep the dog on a restraint of a specific length or material. In addition to this, the owner of the dog may be required to force the dog wear a tag showing that it is both dangerous and malicious, put vicious signs on the outside of the habitant where the dog lives and purchase a liability insurance which will cover any damage that is caused by the dog. This paper is both an argumentative essay as well as a case study. The paper describes breed specific legislation by giving a case where the legislation has been applied. The dog was found standing over the body and it was assumed that Darla has succumbed from the excessive blood loss. Consequently, police officers killed the dog using a pistol as he tried to run from the back yard. Though the dogs lead to death of Darla, many U. S citizens have different views towards the killing of the bull pit dog. Many citizens argued that if the death of Darla was caused by another type of dog, the news could not be widespread as it did Nancoo. They argued that the media is bias towards the Bull pit breed of dog. This story was taken so serious that it was the headlines of almost all the newspapers in the United States the following day. Instead of shorting the dog and killing it as a measure of mitigating the problem in future, the media should have published an article that educated the mass how to protect themselves from the attacks from dogs. The breed specific legislation is not effective and it is not an ultimate solution to the problems of insecurity. Some of the weaknesses of the legislation include; The Breed Specific legislation is not the only solution to the skyrocketing levels of insecurity, in fact it leads to the increasing tension of insecurity in a nation than a sense of security. In addition to this, the law has been biased and also not inclusive but seems only target particular individual dogs. For example, according to site Laws, a large group of experts and organizations believes that nothing should be done to the dogs, but instead the owners of the dogs, children and the elderly must be educated. In addition the government should enact strong criminal laws that prohibit dangerous behavior on the dog owners, and help gather more information from the dog owners that would help come up with legislations that are geared towards the security of the people from the dogs but that does not involve killing of the dos. According to laws, any dog could be a dangerous and a bad dog, and therefore it is impossible to identify bad breeds of dogs such as the pit bulls, and therefore people or organizations with bad intentions will try to harm breeds by painting them killer breeds for the purpose of staying one ahead of the law. Other weaknesses of the breed specific legislation include; always focusing on the dangerous dogs tries to divert the attention of from the real problem to other issues which are not the main cause of the problem-The main problem is the presence of irresponsible dog owners. Another reason why the legislation is not effective is that it deprives pet owners of their beloved pets laws. Another challenge with the breed specific laws is that, the owners of the breeds of dog which are considered to be dangerous hide them from the public, the laws punishes good owners and good dogs- since the law covers all the dogs that are of a certain breed, even the good dogs and their owners are affected ASPCA. For example the Pit Bull Terrier was used as pet before it was declared a dangerous breed of dog Modern Dog magazine. It is not logical to assume that all dogs that are of a particular breed all dangerous and this is what lead to the U. In addition to this, the laws impart a sense of insecurity and also may encourage ownership of the outlawed breeds of dogs but irresponsible people. To conclude, I do not support the breed specific legislation because the law is not only biased but also has many weaknesses which should be factored before it is fully implemented. In addition the law does not solve the real issue of dog bite but instead turn the focus from the problem to other issues. Moreover, killing of a certain breed of animals is doing injustice to the animal family and an act that is against the rights of animals. Instead of implementing the breed specific legislation and killing a certain breed of dogs, it is better to educate the dog owners, the youths and the elderly on how to handle dogs. Social Media Research Paper Example: Social media is a great system of different means of communication and data exchange in the Internet. Nearly everybody is an active member of a certain social media community, that is a web site which connects people who share common interests.

Media exposure on Cosmetic surgery, where the surgery features in advertising and reality TV shows, play an outsized role in influencing young adults particularly, adolescent girls. Exposure to such shows has resulted in many girls being dissatisfied with their physical appearance and self-perception, making them have the urge to change how they look. A research design was used to study the responses of teenage girls to cosmetic surgery TV shows. Research has been performed on girls between the ages of 15 to 18 years where they are randomly earmarked to one of three conditions on a cosmetic surgery TV show, namely; mentioning dangers associated with surgery, the dangers are not mentioned, or the control condition, a home makeover show. The study shows that their responses to cosmetic surgery show varied from the extent that they derived self-worth from their appearance and their materialistic values. Modeling body size requirement The extreme thinness of the models on media is another contributing factor of the body image being affected by social media. With all the applications now available, this ideal or perfect body is often generated through image editing. There are tools used to manipulate photos and they are widely available and easier to use. A Professional retoucher manipulated unretouched photos to generate unretouched and retouched image conditions. A study was carried out where adolescents, average age of In the retouched-aware condition, body consciousness increased while the physical self-esteem decreased among male and female adolescents. While some youths are aware that those pictures of online models are photoshopped and edited, they still want to look like them. There is a major interrelationship between genre-related television exposure, perceptions of the body image and dissatisfaction of the body. A study was carried out where female undergraduates finished measures of thin-ideal reality TV viewing, peer and parental views and attitudes towards thinness, social value perceptions of thinness, as well as the attribute of the thin ideal and body discontentment measures. Results showed that thin ideal reality TV viewing and some social values like the peer and parental attitudes are directly connected to how the social value of thinness is perceived. However, thin-ideal reality TV exposure was indirectly related to the internalization of the thin ideal and body discontentment. Many TV shows feature very small numbers of people of average or above average weight. Women who are above average weight tend to draw very negative comments from other characters about their looks. It has also led to low self-esteem on those people whose weight is above average. Television characters with unrealistic bodies have resulted in many young adults going for plastic surgery and using chemicals so as to have that perfect body. Channels of influence It is not just television shows, advertisements, and magazines anymore. Other social sites such as Instagram, that specifically focuses on uploads of personal pictures, also have a great effect on body image. A study was conducted where girls between the ages of fourteen to eighteen years old were randomly subjected to either the actual original or edited Instagram photos. The results indicated that exposure to edited Instagram photos directly led to lower self-esteem as well as lower body image. Girls with higher social comparison ways were negatively affected by exposure to the edited photos. Interestingly, the edited pictures were highly rated than the original ones. It was noted that girls in both conditions found the pictures realistic. Instagram is one of the culprits behind the growing trend of body discontentment among adolescent girls. Adolescent girls are more likely to develop body image issues because of comparing themselves to social norms of beauty as portrayed in the social media representations. Social media is more interactive and thus provides users with more agencies to personalize and control their experiences. A study that was carried out on US women projected that people who follow fitness boards on online media specifically Pinterest are more likely to engage in intense weight loss behaviors. Reasons behind the change in body size Increased body image displeasure in adolescent girls has been caused by great exposure to thin-ideal media. Appearance comparison, peer norms, and control were the set of experimental tools used to evaluate the effects of exposure to thin-ideal media. In addition to social media, it is vital to note the importance of various concepts on body image such as culture, social comparison, thin-ideal, active use of social media such as posting and commenting. The research on those areas will help broaden the scope of research on body image. Media promoted unrealistic thin-ideals are associated with major effects on women and girls body image, eating patterns and moods Tiggermann, Conclusion Research on how the thin exposure models influence body displeasure shows that participants exposed to thin-idealized model images demonstrated greater body discontentment and lower advertising effectiveness than those exposed to non-idealized model images. Therefore, the use of non-idealized model images is suggested Yu Psychology of Popular Media Culture. Image Retouching and Adolescent Body Image. Body Image and the Role of Television. Chapter 4 : Research paper on social media effects

Today, social media forms significant element of the current world civilization. It depicts the integration of the social interactions and lives of people across the world.

The Effects of Social Media on Student Performance Introduction Effects of social media in education has been discussed and debated by educational researchers and social media researchers since the start of these platforms. Students have been more and more involved in using social media with the passage of time. Parents, teachers, and education researchers have been discussing the advantages and disadvantages of frequency of use and time spent on social media. There are research studies, which find social media useful in the sense that it facilitates teacher-student and student-student interaction and learning improvement. While there are others who are against the use of social media by students as they are of the view that social media wastes the time of students and thus effects their academic performance. Academic performance means the level of achievement of students in their studies. Social media include Facebook, LinkedIn, twitter, web 2. Research finds different opinions regarding the role of social media in higher education whether that is through virtual or real classes. The researchers say that different institutions have established facilities to take greater benefits from social media but there is still lack of proper integration of these media into educational setup to gain maximum benefits. Again, they argue that extroverts are often good in self-regulation. This characteristic of self-regulation reduces the negative impact of social media usage on their academic performance. They also conclude that the extent of deep involvement also called cognitive absorption determines about how much time students spend on Facebook and how many times do they visit Facebook. Multitasking is another personal characteristic of humans. Similarly, they also found that time spent on social media and time spent on homework are negatively related. Junco explained that when students use social media in certain ways, then it has negative effects on their performance. Therefore he suggests that this issue should further researched. He observes that some specific uses of social media improve academic performance of students while other ways lower their performance. Majority of students from Malaysian Higher Education Institutes say that they use social networks for informal learning and that it helps them to connect to their friends and classmates to get help in their studies. However, half of the students say that interaction with teachers is not very common on social media. Gupta studied the effects of social media on the performance of students in distance education. Conclusion The above studies show that research on the role of social media and social networking sites in academic performance of students is still unclear about the results. Most of the researchers have created more questions than finding answers. However, careful investigation is still demanded in this area. Investigating faculty decisions to adopt web 2. This sample research paper on social networks to find out why they can be dangerous while offering a great tool for conversation.

Social Media Research Paper Example: Social media is a great system of different means of communication and data exchange in the Internet. Nearly everybody is an active member of a certain social media community, that is a web site which connects people who share common interests. People work, study, rest and relax with the help of social media. People can find data for their work, for education and hobbies with the help of social media. Moreover, with its help, if a person is smart or talented, she can share her achievements and become famous in the Internet and all over the world. So, it is obvious that social media exists only due to the people who share data and enable everybody to use it. Every person is an active member of social media, because everybody shares or uses data all the time. Various kinds of social media include projects represented by the websites of all types with the help of which one can share video, audio files, pictures, photos, presentations, so nearly everything. A well-organized research paper on social media should present the topic from all sides and determine the factors which provoked to the development of media and illustrate its value for the modern society. The paper should be well-structured and logically composed, because it is quite broad and requires careful organization. The paper has to include good presentation of the types of social media and personal suggestions of a student concerning its improvement. Evidently, one should not investigate the topic from the positive side, but think about certain disadvantages of social media. For example, speaking about Facebook one should say that young people devote too much time to social networking, which could be spent on some activities. Students who are required to write a good research paper on the topic have too much work to do. The problem is vast, so they will need long hours to collect reliable data and evidence to support their thoughts. In order to gather information one can read books and articles in the scientific publications dedicated to the problem of social media and culture or advertising. It is obvious that advertising is the source of the main profit for social media, so one can devote the paper to the investigation of this problem. The best help for students who need assistance with paper writing is a good free sample of research paper on social media marketing in the Internet.
