The Rough Guide to Languedoc and Roussillon combines rich cultural and historical information and lively coverage of all the sights with detailed practical information - for all budgets. The maps combine clear design and more road detail with an easy to read scale to ensure that you never lose your way. RADAR speed cameras are shown. Used by the majority of French motorists. Bordering Provence, this region contains some of the most dramatic landscape in France. The guide is divided into two parts. The first explores the region via typical themes with specialist maps. The second half examines the region by subdividing it into smaller areas, recommending towns, villages, areas of natural beauty and monuments and attractions. Languedoc, Roussillon, Tarn Gorges Green Guide Michelin Green Guides Provides a wealth of practical information on planning your visit - shopping, dining out, accommodation and seasonal events. The author struggles to deal with his dilapidated inheritance - an unfamiliar and unpredictable world where the brambles have grown as tall as the olive trees, the water supply has just dried up and there is a ferocious animal under the roof tiles Notes from the Languedoc It is easy to get to the Languedoc. Follow the Rhone south through France, then once you hit the Mediterranean coast, turn right. The mystery is that for generations, people have been getting to the sea and turning left to Provence. Signpost Guide Languedoc and Southwest France, 2nd: Portrait of a Wilderness by Edwin Mullins Edwin Mullins evokes the area's natural beauty and also its appeal to artists and writers. Assessing the impact of the nineteenth-century renaissance of local identity, he explores how myth and vibrant local culture white horses, bull-fighting, the gypsy-influenced Marian cult of Les Saintes-Maries-de-la-Mer have created our fascination with the Camargue. His portrait considers the often turbulent history of the region up to its renaissance as a tourist attraction. Inside a Languedoc Kitchen Returning to his challenging home in the Languedoc, Patrick Moon could easily fill the days, protecting infant vines from marauding wild boar and hiding baby truffle oaks from unscrupulous neighbours. The local campsite cafe is, however, now an ambitious new restaurant. The determination of its talented young chef to achieve perfection on a shoestring is intriguing, and Patrick soon finds himself behind the swing doors, sharing in the triumphs, disasters and sheer hard work of life in a serious kitchen. He then highlights the winemaking methods used in each area and profiles the producers and their wines. Selected Bed and Breakfast in France:
