Progressions Some of the most significant secondary progressions: When the Progressed Sun Changes Sign: Depending on how long a person lives, the progressed Sun changes sign perhaps 3 times in the entire life span. The period when the progressed Sun is very late in a sign and is about to change to a new sign this occurs for about a year is often a rather critical year in which many changes occur. Plenty of real-life events are possible such as relocation, a new job in a new field, etc. Hasty and poor decisions and a sense of urgency can be characteristic of this period. Read more about the Critical Degrees and their impact in progressions here. The Progressed Moon " Cycle of Maturity: The progressed Moon moves through the houses of our natal chart, coming full circle in about years. The house it is moving through represents areas of our life that come into focus. We recognize our needs in these areas more intensely, although not necessarily clearly. In fact, our emotional needs seem to change or shift as the house position changes. The sign of your Progressed Moon indicates the prevailing emotional attitude of that period of time. Also significant is the progression of the Moon to critical degrees , as well as Progressed Moon in Aspect to Natal Planets and Points. The Progressed Lunation Cycle: This is the cycle from one progressed New Moon to the next every years. Look to the phase of the progressed Sun and progressed Moon. During the progressed New Moon phase, individuals instinctively start a new phase or chapter in their lives. The First Quarter phase represents a particularly active, building stage, while the Gibbous stage presents a time of refining and fine-tuning. This makes way for the Full Moon phase, which is a time of fruition and accomplishment. This marks the beginning of the progressed waning moon phase, when some things dissolve and one begins to recognize the need to let go. This can be a somewhat confusing time, as one instinctively prepares for the final stage of the waning Moon: During this phase, old systems begin to phase out, and there may be a desire for withdrawal and reflection. Transits to the Progressed Planets and Points: Transits to progressed planets and angles are extremely significant, and should never be overlooked. For example, transiting Saturn may not be making any significant aspects to our natal chart, but if it is squaring our progressed Sun, we will feel its influence in our lives. These charts can be read much like natal charts, except that it must be kept in mind that they are in effect only for the course of a year approximately from birthday to birthday. A Solar Return chart can be read in as much detail as desired. Some key points to consider are as follows: For example, if Aries is on the Ascendant in the Solar Return chart, the individual may approach the year with increased energy and enterprise, and perhaps with some impatience. Note which planets and points in the natal chart, if any, are effectively brought to an angle of the Solar Return chart. This consideration shows us what natal conditions, or inherent personality issues, are highlighted in the year of the Solar Return. If, for example, you have a natal Sun square Mars, and the sun is on the Solar Return Ascendant, perhaps with Mars on the Midheaven as well, we can safely presume that the Sun-Mars struggle or challenge will be especially highlighted in both a personal Ascendant and public Midheaven manner. Similarly, note which Solar Return planets are on or aspecting Solar Return angles. These are transits that are emphasized in the year of the Solar Return. What is the condition of the Sun? Where is it located by house? We know the sign, of course, because it will be at the exact natal position. This can show an area of focus for the upcoming year. What kind of aspects does it make? Where is the Moon? The position of the Moon by house and sign will show where your heart is, so to speak. If, for example, the Solar Return Moon is in Libra in the 5th house, you will likely be emotionally tied up in, and concentrated on, love and relationship. More than simple fluctuations will be in store in this area of life if, for example, the Moon is also forming a square to Pluto in the Solar Return chart. Profound changes are likely to occur here. Note that a Solar Return chart can be read much like a natal chart, with the idea that it is transient rather than permanent. For example, if Solar Return Venus is opposite Solar Return Neptune, especially if Venus also rules the second house in the Solar Return, you might presume that either this coming year there is less emphasis on materialism, or that your income might be fluctuating and somewhat unstable. A consideration that I have found to be particularly significant is critical degrees. The most significant critical degrees in Solar Return interpretation are 29 degrees and 0 degrees of any sign. I do look at the classic critical degrees as well, but as a secondary consideration. Read more about Solar Returns. We look for confirmation elsewhere. An illuminating technique involves creating a tri-wheel with the natal chart in the center, secondary progressions in the second wheel, and transits in the outer third wheel. This way we can easily see transits to both the natal chart and the progressed chart, progressed planets in relationship to the natal chart, and progressed planets in relation to other progressed planets. This will help us to see the big picture, in terms of general themes. If we study transits to the natal chart alone, we will find that significant events are not always confirmed. If we add transits to progressed planets and points to our study, we open up much more detail. Studying progressed planets and points and their relationship to the natal chart and to each other, our study becomes even more fine-tuned.
