Welcome to the Sundered Skies! The definition of a wiki is A website developed collaboratively by a community of users, allowing any user to add and edit content. The more everyone participates in the creation of this wiki, the more useful for everyone it will become. Hopefully, the following information will help you to quickly and easily create new wiki pages, characters and items. The process is almost the same as creating your PC. Feel free to ask me if you want some help with naming conventions. Obsidian Portal will automatically use the name of the NPC as the link. Give a few words about the NPC. Give the NPC any physical descriptions in this section. Questions to ask yourself are: What is the race of the NPC? What is their eye, hair, skin, etc color? Do they have a distinct way of talking? Do they have any distinctive mannerisms? If this is a NPC from your background give any important information about your backstory together. We can also flesh out the NPC later if necessary. Creating New Wiki Pages Click on the Wiki tab Pick which of the three overarching sections your wiki page will live under: History , Rules , or The Skies. History contains Adventure Log posts, rumors, and story notes. This is a good place to keep session notes to refer to later. Rules includes general Savage World rules that we always have to flip back to during game, house rules for our campaign or system specific rules for Sundered Skies. The Skies has information about physical locations in the Sundered Skies that you want to remember. The Skies is also where any information about cults, factions or nations lives. I have removed the Goods and Major Players pages from the wiki in an effort to clean it up. All information regarding gods, kings, cultists, rivals, allies, and monsters should live on the Character tab. If there are rumors that involve them, add the wiki slug to the rumor in your Adventure Log post or in the rumor wiki page under History. All Goods information has been moved to the Items tab. Click on the Items tab. The name of the item. Obsidian Portal will fill this automatically using the name you gave the item. You can fill this in if you like. It will display the category of the item in the item page. Give a few words about the item. Any information about what the item looks like lives in description. You can also add any in-game statistics that you are applicable. They can be anything related to the story and can be as a paragraph. Possible Adventure Log Examples: Reactions to NPCs, locations or items The thought process about why a PC did what he or she did A synopsis of the previous session Narration of a fight sequence Narration of a great bit of roleplaying Honestly, just about anything that you thought about a session, scene or event that you want to share Sundered Skies.
