Dean is displeased with a mistake Sam made on a hunt. Dean forces Sam to tell him what has been bothering him. Dean is wallowing in despair, and Sam prays for help. That help comes in the unexpected form of John Winchester. I wrote it during Season 2, so my take on the future is vastly different from what happened in the show. When John and Sam find out what Dean has been doing, they track him down. Unprepared - This story was written for my own Prompt Challenge. By trusting Ruby, Sam goes into a situation unprepared. When Dean finds out Sam has been drinking demon blood and hiding it from him, he decides to take drastic measures to make him stop. This is my take on what could have happened if the boys were dropped into a porn channel. Spoilers for all of season 5, and season 6. Sam goes directly to Dean after getting out of the cage, and together they try to figure out if Adam got out too. Dean is angry with Castiel for everything that has happened, and Castiel offers a resolution of sorts. This is what I wish had happened between Castiel and Claire in that episode. Sam decides to have a party while John and Dean are hunting. Dean is 19 and Sam is Dean is unusually clumsy all day, and suspects foul play. No Soliciting - Dean is 17, and Sam is Dean tries to make money so that Sam can go to a school function. Out of Hand - Dean is 16, and Sam is The boys engage in a prank war while John is away on a hunt. William Tell - Dean is 10, and Sam is 6. Dean talks Sam into playing William Tell. Pranks - This story was written for my own Prompt Challenge. Supernatural pictures courtesy of.

Chapter 2 : Super Natural Farm - About Us

Changeling Changelings are humanoid creatures with discolored, slimy skin, hollow eyes, and a round mouth with many teeth. They can appear human, but their true nature is revealed in their reflection. Incineration is the only method to kill a changeling, if their mother is killed via fire, all the children will become set aflame along with her. Chupacabra translated into English means "goat sucker. Crocotta The crocotta is a long-lived scavenger able to live for centuries. It is known to live in filth and squalor, and has the ability to appear human and mimic voices of people it has heard. The crocotta in legends is described as being able to lure people deep into the forest by mimicking the voice of a loved one, in order to consume the souls of their victims, in modern times they appear to have been able to adapt and use technology to their benefit. Their true form is unknown, however when they feed their jaws will extended and reveal long sharp and jagged fangs. Djinn Djinns are creatures that are able to poison their victims with a touch, sending them into a coma where they get to live out their deepest fantasies while the djinn slowly feeds on their blood over a long period of time. Djinns can typically be found in large ruins, they appear human with blue glowing eyes and tattooed skin covering their bodies, when they put a victim under, their hands are consumed by a blue smokeless flame which knocks the victim out instantly. There also appears to be a "bastard off-shoot" of djinn that are able to pass off as human and cause their victims to live in their worst nightmare as opposed to a happy fantasy. Dragons Dragons are creatures capable of camouflaging themselves as humans, in their true form they appear to have scaly skin, serpent eyes, bat like wings and talons. Dragons also have the ability to generate extreme heat, which is able to melt metal with a touch. Traditionally dragons are attracted to gold and virgins, and prefer to live in caves, but are able to adapt to urban environments by living in a dark secluded places such as sewers. Ghouls Ghouls are creatures that feed off the flesh of the dead, and have the ability to take on the form and memories of the corpse they have fed on, though they are known on occasion to feed on the living. A ghoul can only be killed through a headshot, severe head trauma, or decapitation. They were also the first creatures Dean and Castiel encountered when they awoke in Purgatory. They were created by Eve to be the perfect monster, undetectable to hunters and able to procreate through an infectious bite. Jefferson Starships possessed strength, speed, the ability to shapeshift, as well as a wraith spike and vampire teeth. Khan Worm The Khan worm was the first new monster to be created by Eve upon her release from Purgatory. The Khan worm is an intelligent and self-aware being. Killing the host body will not kill the Khan worm, as it is able to reanimate the corpse. The only method of removing the Khan worm from its host and killing it is through electrocution. There is also a second class of Khan worm, which originates in the Middle East. Unlike the standard version, this cousin does not take possession of its host body. Rather it acts as a parasite, absorbing all bodily fluids, eventually causing the host to go mad with thirst. Extreme dehydration appears to be the only way to force the parasite out of the host body. Kitsune Kitsunes are humanoid monsters, that are known as a type of supernatural fox that can shapeshift into a human in Japanese mythology. Kitsunes feed on the pituitary gland of their victims, though it possible for them to survive off glands harvested from a dead body, if a kitsune falls ill it will need to feed on fresh pituitary glands, otherwise it will risk death. A kitsune can be killed by simply stabbing it in the heart. Kraken Not much is known about krakens in Supernatural, as Sam and Dean have yet to encounter one. All that is known about the creature is that Crowley has a warehouse full of "essence of kraken" in Belize, and that the kraken essence is a key ingredient in a location spell. It is assumed that they have a humanoid form, as well as large claws which are used to rip open the chest cavity of a victim and feed on their heart. There are two ways to kill a lamia; the first is to stab it with a silver knife blessed by a priest, if that is not an option a second method involving covering the lamia in rosemary and salt , and then setting it on fire also proves to be an effective way on disposing of them. Leviathans Leviathans were the first beasts created by God , they were created long before angels or man came to be, and were incredibly powerful and clever beings. Leviathans were primordial creatures from the sea, that through evolution, became able to possess other creatures to survive on land. The number of Leviathans that escaped Purgatory is unknown, they were however able to infiltrate high levels of business once on Earth. Leviathans have the ability to shapeshift and regenerate from any wounds, as well as overpower and kill angels with little effort. However Leviathans have a rigid hierarchy, with Dick Roman having been their leader presumably since creation, if the leader should fall they are effectively rendered aimless in their goals, seeking only to satiate their hunger. Leviathans have few weaknesses, one of those being the compound sodium borate, or borax, which acts as a type of acid to the Leviathans. However the effects are only temporary, but long enough to allow for decapitation. Once the head is removed, it must be kept away from the Leviathan, otherwise it will attach itself back to the body. The only methods to truly kill a Leviathan involve either one eating the other, "bibbing" autocannibalism, or stabbing one with a bone of a righteous mortal that has been bathed in the three bloods of the fallen; which are a fallen angel, the ruler of fallen humanity King of Hell, and the father of fallen beasts an Alpha. However, this weapon has the side effect of pulling anyone close to the dying Leviathan back to Purgatory with it. Nachzehrer Nachzehrer are humanoid looking creatures that are a hybrid between vampires and ghouls. Like vampires, the nachzehrer live in small packs, and prefer to keep extremely low profiles. Nachzehrer have few weaknesses and are incredibly hard to kill. Silver is capable of slowing them down, but is generally ineffective against one. The only way to truly kill one is to place a obol, or copper coin in their mouth and chop off their head. That pretty much trumps Upon "death" their bodies will cease functioning and spontaneously combust, and a new body will rise from the ashes of the old. Like most other supernatural entities it has a weakness to iron, and will cause horrible burns upon contact. The phoenix has been on the run for thousands of years. The more fat a pistaco consumes the stronger it will become. Their weakness is silver, and cutting off their proboscis works as well as stabbing them. Qareen Qareens are shapehifting creatures that take on the form of a persons deepest, darkest desire. Qareens are Arabic in origin and much like a genie do the bidding of a master, who is in control of their black heart. A qareen is unrelenting in its pursuit of their victim, while they can be slowed down temporarily, they will not stop until they rip out the victims heart. The only way to kill one is by finding its heart and piercing it. Rakshasa Rakshasas are a race ancient Hindu creatures that feed on human flesh and prefer to sleep on a bed of dead insects. They have heightened senses, can shapeshift and make themselves invisible. Their only weakness are that they cannot enter a home without an invitation, and they are able to be killed by a knife or any sharp object of pure brass. Rawhead Rawheads are hairy, ragged-looking creatures with leathery skin, they prefer to lurk in basements and like to feed on children. Electrocutation is the best method for killing a rawhead, once done their bodies will be rendered into gooey orange mounds of viscera. Rugaru Rugarus are born human, but through a genetic mutation will eventually transform into cannibalistic creatures with insatiable hunger. When it is time for a rugaru to transform, its bones will begin to shift in its body, and it will be driven by the urge to eat any meat it can get its hands on. This drive eventually leads to human flesh. A single bite of human meat is all it takes for the transformation to be complete, at which point physical attributes such as strength and speed will become enhanced. The only way to kill it is by immolation. Shapeshifters Shapeshifters have the ability to change their physical form, allowing them to look like anyone living, dead or fictional. Unlike most monsters that are driven by their hunger, shapeshifters appear to have purely human drives that can range anywhere from jealousy to greed. Shapeshifters can be identified by the retinal flares they give off on videos, they have a weakness to silver which is deadly to them if pierced through the heart. Sirens Sirens are a type of creature with the ability to change its appearance depending on how it chooses to approach its victims. When a siren chooses its victim it will approach them by reading their mind and appearing as their perfect person. It will manipulate feelings of love; be it sexual, familial or platonic, eventually leading the victim to kill for the siren anyone that would appear threatening to their relationship. Skinwalker Skinwalkers are humans who are able to shapeshift into a canine form, they are essentially cousins to the werewolf as they have a weakness to silver and prefer to feed on the hearts of their victims. Like werewolves they will revert back to their human form when killed. However, they differ in that their transformation is not dictated by the lunar cycle, and have the ability to change forms at will, as well as have control over what they do in their canine form. Soul Eater Soul eaters inhabit a plane between the human world and another, a place that exists outside of time and space. When a soul eater moves into a house, it creates a "nest. Being between worlds, a soul eater is capable of mustering enough strength to snatch the souls of its victims and take them to its nest, where they feed the soul eater until the soul withers away. Vampires Vampires are immortal creatures that are created when a human ingests vampiric blood or gets the blood into an open wound , the transformation is only completed when the infected first feeds, until that point the process is reversible if the person is aware of the cure and able to get the blood of its maker. However, if the transformation is complete the newly created vampire will suffer from bloodlust and need to regularly feed on blood; either from a human, animal or through blood bags. Vampires retain their human appearance, except for a row of retractable teeth, which they use to rip the throats of their victims. They also have enhanced senses allowing them to see in pitch black darkness, and once a vampire gets your scent it will have it for life. Vampires also mate for life and tend to live in nests of eight to ten members, with smaller packs of three to four being sent out to hunt, victims can be kept alive for days while being fed on. All vampires also have a psychic connection to the Alpha Vampire , even if they have not yet fed and fully turned. Most folklore on vampires is false, as they are not affected by garlic or silver , cannot be killed with a wooden stake to the heart or burst into flames when they come into contact with the sun; though vampire eyes are sensitive to ultraviolet light, and prolonged exposure will leave them with a nasty sunburn. The only way to kill a vampire is through decapitation. However, vamptonite -- the blood of humans that have ingested the Leviathan food additive, works as a poison against vampires, once injected or ingested the blood will instantly kill the vampire. Vetala Vetals are serpent-like vampiric creatures that, like most monsters has adapted to appear human. Vetals prefer to hunt in pairs, where they will sedate their victims with venom and feed off of their blood over a number of days, with the victim typically dying after the fourth feeding. While feeding they will reveal snake-like eyes and four pointed fangs. A vetala can be killed by stabbing it in the heart with a silver knife and then twisting, whereupon they will revert to their true serpent form in death. Wendigo Wendigos are people who turned to cannibalism for survival; they are slender, pale, hairless, can be hundreds of years old, are armed with long claws, and have the ability to mimic human voices. Many cultures believed consuming human flesh could give a person abilities such as speed, strength and immortality. The constant consumption of human flesh over the years will eventually transform the person into a wendigo, giving it all those abilities but saddled with an insatiable hunger. Wendigos will hibernate for years at a time, but when it is awake it will store their victims and keep them alive to feed on whenever it wants. The only way to kill a wendigo is through immolation.
