A fellowship recognized and enjoyed The share which one has in anything Communion is related to the words common and communication. We must see that having communion is more than eating a little wafer of bread and drinking a little cup of juice. A person can go through the external motions without experiencing the inward sense of fellowship and partnership that this ordinance was meant to express. Let me say it this way: You can have communion the ordinance without having communion the fellowship. On the other hand, you can have communion the fellowship without necessarily having communion the ordinance. For example, you could sit down for a meal with your wife or family, but mentally be a million miles away, and completely ignore them. Does this mean we should not partake of the ordinance of communion? We should come to this table and partake of these elements because Jesus said we should. This do, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of Me. When we look at the first question: Why are we going to be partaking of these elements? We do something externally because it expresses an inward reality! That inward reality is: But what about the second question: It can be a time when you focus on the company you keep with the Lord Jesus. Listen to what Paul said: Note these three things: You must know that His body was broken for you. You must examine yourself. Some people read this and begin to get under all kinds of condemnation. I missed it this past week. If it did, none would qualify. This table is not for perfect people! The way is never closed to the repentant sinner. To the man who loves God and his fellow men the way is very open, and his sins, though they be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow. But know that God is for you, not against you. He wants to help you overcome, not condemn you, for having fallen short! And He cast out the spirits with a word, and healed all who were sick, 17 that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Isaiah the prophet, saying: It is a "Table for Two. This table is not exclusively a Table for Two. A table for all –" imagine a great banqueting table with room for many –" everyone who responds to the invitation is accepted –" no one is turned away –" there is plenty for everyone. There is also a certain unity that is established by our partaking together, not only of these elements, but of everything pertaining to the Lord Jesus Christ –" our common inheritance. The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ? The Message Version reads: Rather, we become unified in Him. We must recognize the Universal Church that is comprised of every truly born-again person on earth and in heaven.

Talk about crushing out builds lately. Here I am, Saturday night, its 8: Baby is in bed. Actually, who am I kidding!?! Anyway, into the build. This one is for the same customer as my last build. For a little girl who just turned one! A pretty special birthday and some pretty great parents asked me to build a little table and a couple of little chairs for her. I got this one out pretty quick. But first, this build is going to be my last commissioned build for at least two months. I have to start building 51 sandwich boards. I woke up at 2: There I am at 2: There are a lot of different things I needed to cover in the cost. I ran the numbers times but I keep thinking I may have missed something. I may have gotten in over my head. But with any great businesses, mistakes will happen. The only way to grow as a business and as a person is to try new things and take risks. Calculated risks are probably the best. I will definitely keep everyone up to date as I try to find my way through this mass production. It will be fun to document the learning curve as I tackle my biggest order to date! First, I ripped the table top down to size. Next, I took a 2 x 4 and ripped that in half for the legs and cut to length. Marked the length of the stretchers and cut. I fastened everything together using pocket holes. Like so and like so. Cut the angles to 45 degrees. I brad nailed the edge banding onto the table top. I rounded over all the sharp edges. The focus on that handsome bastard. Voila Next, I started on the chairs. I filled in all the holes with putty. I put a round over bit in my router table and rounded over the seat and all the hard edges. Next, I sanded everything smooth till it was like butter. I also put several coats of poly on the table top for extra protection. Let me tell you about how much I hate painting. I went the depot in a hurry and bought the first paint gun I saw. Went home, filled it up with paint. Turned the sucker on and pressed the trigger. Paint started shooting out in blobs. It looked more like I painted the chairs with a paintball gun. I took a quick look at the box and it turned out it was for making popcorn ceilings! Could have happend to anyone though! right!?! My little helper showing off the finished product. Check it out at http: Another build, another blog. Stay tuned as I begin my next big adventure.
