Sometimes I sense a little flutter. Like a shadow swiftly slipping by. Or I hear a silent, gentle murmur. Like a soft whisper from out the sky. I hear you call my name, Or clearly see your face before me. And I feel that you are with me still. I come to know As I am thinking happy thoughts of you You, my son, are thinking of me too. Loving memories fill my aching heart. As dreaming dreams of what could be. Or might have been, if you were here. Until the piercing pain of losing you Comes tumbling down on trembling fear. You could not then in LOVE remember me. Beenie Legato When God calls little children to dwell with Him above, We mortals sometime question the wisdom of His love. For no heartache compares with the death of one small child, Who does so much to make our world, seem wonderful and mild, Perhaps God tires of calling the aged to his fold, So He picks a rosebud, before it can grow old. God knows how much we need them, and so He takes but few to make the land of Heaven more beautiful to view. Believing this is difficult still somehow we must try, The saddest word mankind knows will always be "Goodbye. Nor a star shooting across the dark sky, And, surely, not a misguided butterfly. It was an Angel outside my window last night. An Angel flew past my window at dawn, Dancing a delicate pirouette on the lawn All the while singing her heavenly song, For only a moment then she was gone. An Angel was outside my window at dawn. An Angel flew past my window today. A creature so lovely I begged her to stay. She smiled, spread her wings, and soared away, Her brightness replaced by a shroud of gray. An Angel was outside my window today. If an Angel flies past your window tonight So beautiful and thoughtful and radiating light. If an Angel appears outside your window tonight. You see, I am so special I was needed up above. The product of your love. When you see a child playing and your heart feels a little tug But God did promise strength for the day, comfort for the tears and a light for the way. And for all who believe in his kingdom above, He answers their faith with everlasting love. Unknown Have you ever met a person that fulfilled you deep inside? Someone who has never failed you and stands, no matter, by your side. Someone who gives from their heart and brings sunshine all around, Always smiling and laughing, never seeming down. Have you ever watched a sunset across the ocean shore, And been filled with love and peace, never needing more? Have you ever listened to the wind flowing restlessly through the night? Have you heard a song that moves you and sets your soul free, And makes you feel wild and happy. Unknown Dear Mummy, I just wanted to let you know that I made it home. Everything is so pretty here, so white, so fresh and new. I wish that you could close your eyes and that you could see it too. Please try not to be sad for me God is taking care of me Here there is no sadness, no sorrow, and no pain. We thought about you yesterday, and the day before that, too. We think of you in silence, and often speak your name. All we have are memories, and your picture in a frame. God has you in his keeping, we have you in our hearts. Some days the current takes me In waves of guilt and pain But there are always quiet pools Where I can rest again. To walk the earth was not meant to be. I watch over you every day. I know that you love me in a very special way. You wanted me to be healthy and whole, So you had to let me go. You will get to see me every day As you look at the children who past your way. I may be the little boy with the dimple in his chin Or the little boy with the golden curl. You will know what you did is right Because When you look in the sky on a clear star filled night, I will be the star that is shining so bright. I love you Mommy and Daddy good night.

Chapter 2 : The Oak Ridge Boys :: Hold You In My Arms Lyrics

This is the original Angel In My Arms, father daughter wedding dance song. Written back in , this song came about when I was asked to write a song for my young niece.

April 15, Matthew Paul Today my grandson would have been nine years old. A horrible thing for any mother to go through, but especially a teenage girl. There was a baby, but no heartbeat. Everything was still and silent. No kicks, no flutters. Only stillness, and dread, and despair. My daughter still had to go through labor. When he was finally born, he weighed almost five pounds. I was the first to take him. We wrapped Matthew in a blanket, just like a living baby, and held him in the hospital all day. Rocking him, and cooing at him, and wishing he were breathing and crying. Wishing he were full of life and not death. We took pictures, and named him, and baptized him. Giving him all the honor and respect that we would have had he survived the journey of birth. Some might find this morbid, but we found it necessary. So that he could physically stay in our presence just a little bit more. But later that evening, it was finally time to say goodbye. We gave the funeral home things we wanted to be buried with him. He was buried in the Garden of Angels section of the cemetery, with the other babies that had gone on to be cherubs. We said poems and prayers. And we again said goodbye. His mother had a small box filled with keepsakes, not needing them to remember, just to keep as she would if he had survived. But this would be the only thing she had left of him. That box, and her memories. For a long, long time she visited his grave every day. The Gifts The way our family understood life and death changed on that day. Anything could be dealt with. Anything was better than the alternative. We later survived many terrible times with the understanding that Matthew gave us. We learned a lot during that terrible weekend. Thank you, Matthew, for the gifts you brought to us that day â€” April 14,

Chapter 5 : The Angel in My Arms - Western Australia Public Libraries - OverDrive

On the day that you were born A fear came over me How was I to hold you What would you grow to be Yet when I held you in my arms All my fears just went away And I began to understand You'd always make me feel that way () You're an Angel in my arms And how I love you so Yet I know the day will come That I'll have to let you go Until then I'll hold you gently With tenderness and care And let you.

Chapter 6 : Waltz of the Angels lyrics and chords | George Jones

I really wanna see you/ I really wanna touch you/ If only I could hold you/ In my arms again/ I really wanna reach you/ Forever to be with you/ If only I could hold you/ In my arms again/ It was written in the stars/ On the pages of my heart/ Oh, that someday I would find/ The love I feel for.
