

Chapter 1 : Battle of the Sexes | Fox Movies

In the wake of the sexual revolution and the rise of the women's movement, the tennis match between women's world champion Billie Jean King and ex-men's-champ and serial hustler Bobby Riggs (Steve Carell) was billed as the BATTLE OF THE SEXES and became one of the most watched televised sports events of all time, reaching 90 million viewers around the world.

After he retired from professional tennis in 1973, Riggs remained a master promoter of himself and of tennis. At the time, King was 30 years old and in the midst of earning her seventh year-end ranking as World No. 1. His quick victory 6–2, 6–1 landed Riggs on the cover of both Sports Illustrated and Time. King [edit] Paraphernalia from the Billie Jean King vs Bobby Riggs match Suddenly in the national limelight following his win over King, Riggs taunted all female tennis players, prompting King to accept a lucrative financial offer to play Riggs in a nationally televised match in prime time on ABC that the promoters dubbed the "Battle of the Sexes. King entered the court in the style of Cleopatra, on a feather-adorned litter carried by four bare-chested muscle men dressed in the style of ancient slaves. Riggs also placed many bets on and invested a lot of money in the match. At this point, King realized that she "had to win" given the importance of the match, [25] and broke right back and again in the tenth game to close out the set. After quickly failing from the baseline, where he had intended to play, Riggs dropped his comedic effect and showed a more serious demeanor, as he was forced to change to a serve-and-volley game. She hit a lot of short balls which Bobby could have taken advantage of had he been in shape. It was more than one woman who took care of Bobby Riggs in Houston. Why should he be part of this match? Either he goes or I go. The attendance in the Houston Astrodome was 30,000; [2] as of 2007, it remains the largest audience to see a tennis match in the United States. Riggs wanted a rematch but not King. He considered suing her as a rematch had been part of the contract. King and Riggs would appear together spoofing their rivalry less than two months after the match on an episode of The Odd Couple titled "The Pig Who Came To Dinner" and they became good friends. A lot of men especially around our age were so stunned when he lost that they figured he must have tanked. Budge is convinced of that. But what motive would Riggs have for that? Bobby Riggs, the biggest ham in the world, gets his greatest audience and purposefully looks bad? If he had beaten Billie Jean, he could have kept the act going indefinitely. Next they would have had him play Chrissy on clay. In 1973, New Black Films released the documentary movie Battle of the Sexes in cinemas, with television broadcast following soon after. It was directed by James Erskine and Zara Hayes. The film was released on DVD in 2007. Connors [edit] Nineteen years later, a third "Battle of the Sexes" match, entitled Battle of Champions, was played in Connors, too, was nervous and there was a rumor that he had placed a bet on himself to win at 4: It was only a single set but Tilden prevailed 6–0. Neer had been ranked nationally as high as No. 1. Wills had won at Wimbledon the year prior. Though Neer was only 32, Wills won the match 6–3, 6–4. It involved male and female athletes from various sports, such as Laura Baugh and Jane Blalock vs. Karen Logan in basketball. The tennis event pitted future Wimbledon champion Virginia Wade vs. A single set was played where the men were limited to one serve and the women had the added area of the alleys for shot placement. Borg, Wade, and Goolagong entered the court in standard attire and demeanor, while Nastase entered wearing a dress. Battle of the Sexes: He challenged Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver to a doubles match. Moreover, because Riggs was a finesse player and not a power player, the women expected that defeating him would be easier than a retired power player. The strategy is different in doubles, weaknesses can be more easily masked and stamina is not nearly so critical a factor. Older than the combined ages of Navratilova and Shriver, Riggs was painfully out of place in this match. Even John McEnroe, on his finest day, would be an underdog against Navratilova and Shriver if Riggs were his partner. Braasch was described by one journalist as "a man whose training regime centered around a pack of cigarettes and more than a couple bottles of ice cold lager". He first took on Serena and after leading 5–0, beat her 6–1. Venus then walked on court and again Braasch was victorious, this time winning 6–2. He added that he had played like someone ranked th in order to keep the game "fun". The Williams sisters adjusted their claim to beating men outside the top 10. Noah donned a dress for much of the match. He played predominantly trick shots and slices, but still ended up winning 4â€”6, 6â€”4, 7â€”6. Djokovic clowned to the amusement of the crowd, and at one point swapped places with a ballboy. Li was given a 30â€”0 advantage at the start of each service game, and she went on to win 3â€”2. At that time, McEnroe was 56 years old but still active on the seniors tennis circuit, Serena Williams was 34 years old and in the chase for a "calendar-year" Grand Slam. McEnroe mentioned to Kimmel that about 15 years prior, Donald Trump had suggested that he would like to put together a "battle of the sexes" match between McEnroe and Williams. McEnroe said he would face Williams but that Trump was not offering a big enough payout. McEnroe said that he believed he could defeat Williams in a tennis match.
