

Chapter 1 : Educational Service Agency definitions - Defined Term

Updated December Educational Service Agencies Educational Service Agencies (ESAs) in many states play key roles in the economical and efficient provision of a wide range of educational services to their component school districts.

Non-instructional-level services E-rate Funding Eligibility for ESAs Federal law defines an ESA as a "regional public multiservice agency authorized by state statute to develop, manage, and provide services or programs to local educational agencies. State and territory officials are asked to describe the programs served by ESAs and whether ESAs operate facilities that they either own or lease that contain classrooms. The officials are asked to provide legal support for the information they supply and to certify the accuracy of their determinations. The Eligibility Table for Educational Service Agencies includes the most recent information provided by the states and territories. ESAs are applicants for program discounts. ESAs provide program consulting assistance to their component districts. In some instances, ESAs are service providers of eligible services. When ESAs function as service providers, two potential conflicts may raise concerns. In some states, state law or regulation permits school districts to select services provided by ESAs on a non-competitive basis. Some states provide subsidies so that ESAs may provide discounted rates to public schools. An ESA that does not function as a service provider may assume the role of a consultant to its component districts in regard to their service and equipment requirements, and help its component districts apply for and administer the receipt of discounts. The most cost-effective bid for services or equipment must be selected with price being the primary factor considered. The potential conflict is that the selection of the service provider may not be fair and open but may, in fact, provide an unfair advantage to the ESA as service provider. Examples of this conflict include, but are not limited to the following: ESAs in general are large enough to provide organizational and functional separation between staff acting as service providers and staff providing application and administration assistance. Examples of such documentation include organizational flow charts, budgetary codes, and supervisory administration. The FCC competitive bidding requirements must be met for the services to be eligible for discounts. Some states provide offsetting aid payments to public school districts, reducing some ESA charges for equipment and services eligible for discounts. If an ESA is acting as a service provider, any state reductions must be applied after the discount is applied. The evaluation of alternatives must include price without discounts as the primary factor. It does not violate FCC rules to include other factors weighted less heavily than the non-discount price relating to the availability of discounts from other sources for particular alternatives. Finally, since ESAs may be both applicants and service providers on separate applications, discounts cannot be paid twice for the same service. If an ESA is serving as an Internet service provider to its districts and the districts are seeking discounts on that Internet access, the ESA cannot also seek discounts as a consortium leader for those services from the underlying providers. With the guidance of the FCC policy, we collect and deliver funding through four programs that are focused specifically on places where broadband and connectivity needs are acute.

Chapter 2 : RESA Map & Directory

AESA is a National Organization for ESAs. AESA proudly supports over regional educational service agencies in 45 states. ESAs and their staff support school districts in their regions with services such as staffing, professional development, and various other resources.

Chapter 3 : Midland County Educational Service Agency | Official Home Page of the Midland County ESA

County Education Service Agencies Tweet While Arizona school districts are governed by their own school boards, each Arizona county does provide educational services and oversight under the direction of an elected county school superintendent.

Chapter 4 : Clinton County RESA | Home

Educational Service Agency According to 20 USCS Â§ (17), the term "educational service agency" means "a regional public multi-service agency authorized by State statute to develop, manage, and provide services or programs to local educational agencies."

Chapter 5 : State education agency - Wikipedia

The educational service agency (ESA) is a relatively unfamiliar part of the public elementary and secondary education system. The term 'ESA' refers to a formal or.

Chapter 6 : Service Above and Beyond | Cooperative Educational Service Agency #4 | West Salem, WI

The Pinal County School Office Education Service Agency is committed to working cooperatively with agencies throughout the state in identifying and serving the educational needs of Pinal County.

Chapter 7 : Griffin RESA Home Page

An educational service agency is a regional public multiservice agency (not a private organization) that is authorized by state law to develop, manage, and provide services or programs to local education agencies, such as public school districts.

Chapter 8 : Educational Service Agency Law and Legal Definition | USLegal, Inc.

Close Contact Information Contact Information. Information on how to contact Cooperative Educational Service Agency 5 through phone, address, and email.

Chapter 9 : Cooperative Educational Service Agency | Your Education Solutions Partner | Portage, WI

Students attending RESA's Technical Education Center (TEC) can participate in the Career and Technical Middle College. This program is a partnership between RESA, the county's seven public K school districts, and St. Clair County Community College.