There were bits where I thought it was getting better but it just never fully caught me. I love Angel stories, just not this one Aug 28, Tearlynn rated it it was amazing I really enjoyed this short story about the age old question of "What if the Creator turned away? What if humanity was put to the challenge what would happen? Who is stronger humans or the Fallen? You see her getting very close with Lincoln and wondering what is next. For a short story it was enjoyable but I now would really love to see more of the Kara and Linc I really enjoyed this short story about the age old question of "What if the Creator turned away? For a short story it was enjoyable but I now would really love to see more of the Kara and Lincoln story picked up where this one ended. Jun 07, Harley rated it really liked it This is a short novella of What if? Ms, Coleman presents and compelling alternate reality of what would happen if angels started to fall. This is done from the viewpoint of the girl who spend her life hiding on the roof dreaming of living. I found myself thinking who knows with all the craziness in the world. This was a short read but well written and worth the time. I felt the characters were shallow with the ending that should have been the beginning as descriptive with the story to unfold naturally. Dec 18, Rebecca Smith rated it liked it A quick read with a heck of a twist at the end. Not my normal genre but a good option for switching things up without a big time investment. Jul 12, Kathy Stone rated it really liked it Good story This was a good story, well written. The major them is good verses evil. It is hard to stay good when do many are turning evil. One person stands up for what is right. Jun 11, Daisy rated it really liked it Nice quick read This is a short story of fallen angels and the end of the world. The choices of good and evil with angels and humans playing important roles. Oct 04, Dawncee rated it liked it Not Bad Short, could have rounded out a couple more characters better. And definitely had a bigger climax. But I liked the premise with God at the end. Mar 09, Jackie rated it liked it A short story that can be read quickly. Klara eats lunch every day on the roof. One day something bad happens down below and an angel comes to her. Shows how life can change quickly.

Principal characters[edit] All of the characters are Jewish, except as noted: A firm supporter of the traditions of his faith, he finds many of his convictions tested by the actions of his three oldest daughters. Tzeitel, their oldest daughter, about nineteen. Hodel, their daughter, about seventeen. Intelligent and spirited, she falls in love with Perchik and later joins him in Siberia. Chava, their daughter, about fifteen. A shy book lover, who falls in love with Fyedka. Motel Kamzoil, a poor but hardworking tailor who loves, and later marries, Tzeitel. Perchik, a scholar and Bolshevik revolutionary who comes to Anatevka and falls in love with Hodel. He leaves for Kiev and is exiled to Siberia. Fyedka, a young Christian man. Lazar Wolf, the wealthy village butcher. Attempts to arrange a marriage for himself to Tzeitel. Yente, the gossipy village matchmaker who matches Tzeitel and Lazar. Rabbi, the wise village leader. Constable, a Christian man; the head of the local Russian police. Chagall reportedly did not like the musical. Mostel ad-libbed increasingly as the run went on, "which drove the authors up the wall. Zero Mostel starred as Tevye. Robbins directed and choreographed. The third Broadway revival opened on November 18, , and ran for performances at the George Gershwin Theatre. Topol starred as Tevye, and Marcia Lewis was Golde. The production won the Tony Award for Best Revival. A fourth Broadway revival opened on February 26, , and ran for 36 previews and performances at the Minskoff Theatre. The production was nominated for six Tonys but did not win any. Bartlett Sher directed, and Hofesh Shechter choreographed. Judy Kuhn replaced Hecht as Golde on November 22, , for the last five weeks of the run. It closed on December 31, after performances. The production was directed by Lindsay Posner. This production was revived in starring Joe McGann. A young Anthony Warlow played Fyedka. Topol left the tour in November due to torn muscles. He was replaced by Harvey Fierstein. It starred Scott Wentworth as Tevye. Fiddler on the Roof film The film version was released in , directed and produced by Norman Jewison , and Stein adapted his own book for the screenplay. The "Chagall color palette" of the original Broadway production was exchanged for a grittier, more realistic depiction of the village of Anatevka. The remastered CD includes two recordings not on the original album, the bottle dance from the wedding scene and "Rumor" performed by Beatrice Arthur. Kenrick writes that while the original Broadway cast version is the clear first choice among recordings of this musical, he also likes the Columbia Records studio cast album with Bernardi as Tevye; the film soundtrack, although he feels that the pace drags a bit; and some of the numerous foreign versions, including the Israeli, German and Japanese casts. Lovecraft Historical Society published a musical theatre and album parody of Fiddler on the Roof called A Shoggoth on the Roof , which incorporates the works of H. Doubtfire , Robin Williams parodies "Matchmaker". Sheffield fakes a dream to convince Fran not to be a regular on a TV show. Covers[edit] Songs from the musical have been covered by notable artists. For example, in , jazz saxophonist Cannonball Adderley recorded the album Fiddler on the Roof , which featured jazz arrangements of eight songs from the musical. AllMusic awarded the album 4 stars and states "Cannonball plays near his peak; this is certainly the finest album by this particular sextet". Allmusic gave the album a favorable review, [65] and the online music magazine Pitchfork Media ranked it at number on their list of top albums of the s. For example, for male couples, changes include "When did they grow to be so handsome". Mostel and Karnilova won as best leading actor and best featured actress. In , the show won a special Tony on becoming the longest-running musical in Broadway history. Its revivals have also been honored. At the Tony Awards, Bernardi was nominated as best actor. Ten years later, the revival won for best revival, and Topol was nominated as best actor. The West End revival was nominated for Olivier Awards for best revival, and Goodman was nominated as best actor.
