The Heir from Nowhere was a decent read nothing great. The characters didn't really pull me in that much and Dominic was bit of a snob and judgmental in the beginning but he did get a shock that due to the clinic's mix-up he is about to become a father.

Eight years later, the Dragon Raids continue but are worse. And why does a little girl look so much like Hiccup? Count on Hiccstrid later in story! Why were they partying? The answer was that after weeks in Dragon Training, the Elder Gothi, had chosen who would kill the Monstrous Nightmare. Once he was taken out of the Kill Ring, he ran home and grabbed some things before heading to the forge and grabbing some little things and then raced into the woods to where his best and only friend was. He sat on his best friend, Toothless the Night Fury. His best friend is a dragon. The ultimate enemy of Vikings. If you looked at the Strike Class dragon you could see a couple of saddle bags on it. Well see to find out With a flap of his large wings, they took off over the town and into the night. But as soon as Toothless took off the cliff, a figure had just come out of the forest that was behind. The figure was Astrid. After losing to Hiccup, she had followed him into the forest, but lost track of him. She ended up finding his tracks, but a good hour later. She looked up hearing wings flapping. Her eyes widen in shock and surprise. A dragon was flying away. Hiccup began to think back to the people of Berk and how they would react to him leaving. He was suddenly pulled from his thoughts when Toothless bounded back. Hiccup picked up his basket and followed Toothless. Toothless led Hiccup to a cave; it was big enough for a dragon to live in and it went deep inside of the mountain. It was evening when they were heading back to their cave. Toothless shook his head when Hiccup patted him. Suddenly Hiccup heard a growl. He turned only to see a Monstrous Nightmare come out from the fog on his right. The large Stoker Class dragon gave a growl. A huge fish was clutched in its claws. Hiccup immediately got down as low as he could on Toothless. Then all of a sudden hundreds of different dragons came out of nowhere carrying food with them in the same direction as they were heading. Rivers of lava trickled down its slopes, and smoke billowed from its top. Upon seeing this island, the dragons sped up. They dived into a huge rock tunnel carved into the side of the volcano. The dragons ahead of them were diving down toward the hole and dropping their prey in. Just before they reached the hole Toothless swooped close to the mist and then suddenly shot upwards and carved a wide turn up towards the top of the cave. He landed on a hidden rock ledge and retreated into the shadows. They watched as all the dragons dropped their food down into the hole. Toothless gave no response. Its eyes narrowed suspiciously. At that moment all the dragons roared and flew out of the mountain. As the dragon rose up and tried to catch Toothless again but it ended up biting a Hideous Zippleback and ate it instead. Once reaching the island, Hiccup jumped off and began to pace. That thing was huge! Toothless cooed worriedly to his rider. Stoick sat by the fireplace staring into the fire. He had sent search parties out, the men just returned with no luck. Stoick had told them to go to sleep and rest up. Stoick held his head in his hands. I failed in raising our Son.

Where No One Goes Disclaimer: I love you guys. He made his helmet from black Gronckle iron in the form of a night fury head. And he made his riding suit from the black fireproof scales of Toothless and Obsidian. Tucked into his riding position, to the dragons their prince appeared to be part of Toothless, covered from head to toe in an armour of black scales. Hiccup snapped out of his memories and with Toothless dipped, rolled and dove, over a sea teeming with Thunderdrums, pulling off daring moves, making them seem effortless. He had even written three books about dragons. Hiccup relaxed and warbled. Wanna give this another shot? You know what happened last time! Hiccup slid off of Toothless, yelling as he plummeted. Toothless dove after him. They spiralled through the air, face to face, green eyes meeting. As they neared the ocean, Hiccup slipped his forearms through a pair of tucked leather flaps, and yanked, unfolding sheets of leather covered in black scales as he extended his arms. They caught the wind, snapping like dragon wings and sending him gliding. Toothless unfolded his wings, too, catching up with Hiccup. They both glided over the clouds, feeling the adrenalin rushing through their bodies as they grinned at each other. He knew this was a bad idea. Toothless emerged through the cloud of debris and hurtled into the trees of a neighbouring peak. They tumbled down the uneven terrain, coming to a rest on a small plateau. He switched his prosthetic riding foot to his walking foot and started stowing away his wings. Hiccup glanced at it then turned back to putting his wings away, like this happened every day. The White King warned you. That locked up tail makes for some pretty messy rescue moves, huh? Obsidian and Midnight will kill us if they find out about this. Do you want an apology? And I do want an apology. Toothless set to work, wiping the spit off of him as Hiccup looked around the new land he discovered. Hiccup pulled out a huge map and had Toothless lick a sheet of paper. He pulled out a knife and sharpened some charcoal. What do you reckon, bud? Think we might find a Timberjacks in those woods? A Whispering Death or two in the rocks. Toothless ran over excitedly to greet them. Midnight got involved in a game of tag with him while Obsidian walked over to Hiccup, who greeted. Where have you been? There are rogue dragons who can and will kill you to take position of the heir. Now go play with a ball of string. Hiccup and Midnight had a bit of rivalry but the truth was that they loved each other very much. I wake up, the sun is shining through the ice, terrible terrors are singing, Midnight is prowling the tunnels. I saunter down to help Dad babysit the hatchlings, thinking all is right with the world and I get: Hiccup switched to Norse. And second, a truly flattering impersonation. Then Toothless and Midnight came running past chasing each other and knocked over Obsidian and Hiccup. By the time he turned around, I was gone. He cooed, giving the map back to Hiccup. You know exactly who you are. Disgusted, he tried to spit it out. But there is something out there. We have to get Dad. Next chapter will be Valka and Astrid finding the busted up fort. Liliauz A "What if Hiccup left" Fanfic. Hiccup goes to a Kingdom where dragons and humans live in peace and became the heir to the throne due to some reasons. Now he has to leave everything behind and go back as the Prince of that dragon-loving kingdom. I suck at summary but please give this story a chance. I absolutely love "what if" fanfics. It gets really interesting if done right. You get to kill the dragon! There, he saw another Night fury. A White Night Fury. Are you his rider? We fight with them. We farm with them. They protect us and we do the same! Hiccup was waiting for his reaction. His dragon seems to have been irritated too. So Berk hunts dragons huh? Nice to meet you. I have an offer for you. But from where I am, being a Dragon Rider there is everything. You can be with other dragon riders. Toothless deserves to be safe from all of this. What do you say? Hiccup just followed a complete stranger to a place Thor knows where. It is govern by King Drunal II. Just a few more hours before we reach Kabac then. I got to say the most interesting job is the Dragon Army. Maybe you should sign up. You may be small but that gives you an advantage on speed. Humans and dragons can live in peace. We can fight alongside them. He looked at Hiccup like he had forgotten something. Raven then cleared his throat. Let me re-introduce myself. I am Raven Higaël, the Prince of Kabac. He did not expect that. Heirs are chosen with the acknowledgement of our High Priestess. Sorry to disappoint you. This was the first time he had a conversation full of apologies. He turned to Hiccup. He was lost and injured badly. When he recovered, he was adopted and became the heir of Kabac. He married princess from Sandtorg, another kingdom right beside our kingdom and became an empire. But when the king died, the land was divided amongst siblings. They had two children who were known to be not fond of each other. From what language people speak there to how the dragon army works. It took a very long time. Somewhere between hours till they landed on the one they call the Kabac Kingdom. There were a lot of people and dragons and they stopped at whatever they were doing and looked at us. This is where you belong! There were dragons which he never saw before. People began to whisper and some even clapped, cheering in another language. Raising his eyebrows at the red headed girl. Right beside her was a brown haired girl with a strange outfit.
