Love is the last thing on her mind despite the concern from her married friends. Can repeated trips to the midnight room change them both? It is also the location that pushes the two main gals onto the next level and into a rather complex relationship. Additionally, there is a potpourri of alliances, family folks, and richly extrapolated personal dynamics that envelops the focal pair and really enhances things. The main twosome initially seems cemented in place and that presents an interesting assortment of responses from friends and me, too! This book was immensely intriguing, delightfully educational for me, and deliciously intense and romantic. That puts her in quite a sticky wicket. Luckily, she continues to be a very proficient therapist, but remains a large problem for her friends. She gets kind of sucker punched and finds herself within the "Midnight Room" along with the most desirable woman who regularly shows up at the Griffin and is astoundingly alluring to absolutely everyone. The scene is a discombobulation knocking Lillian and even Audrey to near epic proportions. It is simply brilliant! Audrey McCarthy is a personal trainer, has a drop-dead gorgeous body, and an out of this world magnetism. Everyone wants Audrey and it has generally been the case that Audrey wants to sample everyone. She is a knock-out! If I were a character in this story, I would want my time with her, too. As I got to know Lillian and then Audrey, their lives took on more and more nuances. This grabbed me right from the beginning and held my attention all the way through. I most certainly recommend this book to new or returning fans of Ronica Black. Mariah - Windsor, CT.
