She is avidly interested in non-fiction focusing on pop culture, science, Francophilia, Judaica, and lifestyle. Non-fiction can be for adults, young adults, or middle grade. Irene prefers a particular format to queries. First, paste in the first ten pages of the manuscript. After that, include the synopsis. And finally, at the bottom, include the query letter. Miriam is passionate about modern urban fantasy, young adult fiction, romance, and all other types of commercial fiction. Barbara is looking for high octane thrillers, edgy mysteries, literary and upmarket fiction and YA. She is open to platform-driven nonfiction as well as select nonfiction in the areas of lifestyle, wellness, and narrative nonfiction. She is also open to non-fiction submissions in the areas of design, cooking, and fashion. Victoria is looking for commercial and literary Middle Grade and Young Adult fiction as well as upmarket commercial or literary Adult fiction. She represents contemporary, fantasy, sci-fi, magical realism, and horror, and select narrative non-fiction. If you have a manuscript that you would like to send us, please first ask yourself the following questions: Is this manuscript in the best possible shape? Do I believe it is ready to sell, or am I just testing the waters? Is my query letter professionally written and proofread? Does my work fit the guidelines of the kinds of books this agency represents? If you can answer yes to all of the above, then please do the following: First choose which agent to whom you want to submit. Study the guidelines above as to what each of us is looking for. Email a query letter and the first ten pages, along with a synopsis paragraphs and bio, in the body of an email to the agent of your choice. The email addresses for this purpose are listed below. Please DO NOT email the agents at their personal email addresses, and do not submit to more than one of our agents. If your query is of interest, the agent to whom you submitted may choose to pass it on to another agent here, or she may get back to you herself.
