Ensemble cast[ edit ] The main cast members were familiar to television viewers before their roles on Friends, but were not considered to be stars. All six actors appear in every episode. Rachel Green Rachel Karen Green Jennifer Aniston is the spoiled but warm-hearted and likeable daughter of a rich vascular surgeon and his wife. She eventually becomes a buyer at Polo Ralph Lauren. She decides to move in with Ross, even though the two are not involved in a relationship. Their daughter, Emma, is born during the eighth-season finale. During the tenth season, Rachel is offered a job with Louis Vuitton in Paris. She accepts and prepares to move herself and Emma to France. However, in the series finale , she declines the job offer and famously "gets off the plane". Rachel and Ross get back together in the final moments of the series. Monica Geller Monica E. Geller Courteney Cox is the younger sister of Ross and best friend of Rachel, the latter of whom she invites to live with her after Rachel forsakes her own wedding. She works primarily as a chef at a variety of restaurants. She is described as the mother hen of the group, [18] and is known for her obsessive-compulsive and competitive nature. Despite the twenty-one year age difference, Monica and Richard are happy, and her parents accept their relationship. However, as a result of Monica yearning for a family but Richard having already had one, they break up at the end of the second season. Monica and Chandler try to hide their relationship from the rest of the group for much of the fifth season, but eventually everyone finds out. After celebrating their first anniversary in Las Vegas , they move in together and get engaged by the sixth-season finale. After their marriage, Monica and Chandler try to conceive children, only to discover that they are unable to do so. In the final season of the series, they adopt two children, whom they name Erica and Jack. Phoebe Buffay Phoebe Buffay-Hannigan Lisa Kudrow is an odd, ditzy albeit sweet-natured masseuse who grew up homeless, sometimes telling her friends outlandish tales of life on the street. She is an aspiring musician who plays the guitar and sings songs with somewhat unusual lyrics at the coffee shop. She has an identical twin sister, Ursula also played by Kudrow , who is just as odd as Phoebe and appeared as a recurring character on Mad About You. After a series of dates and relationships with a number of men, Phoebe meets Mike Hannigan Paul Rudd in season nine, whom she eventually marries in season ten. She also became a surrogate mother for her half-brother Frank Jr. Giovanni Ribisi , giving birth to his triplets in the fifth season. Matt LeBlanc is a good-natured but not-so-bright struggling actor and food lover, who becomes mildly famous for his role as Dr. Drake Ramoray on a fictionalized version of Days of Our Lives. Prior to his role on Friends, LeBlanc appeared as a regular on the short-lived TV , a minor character in the sitcom Married Chandler Bing Chandler Muriel Bing Matthew Perry is an executive in statistical analysis and data reconfiguration for a large multi-national corporation. He later quits his job and becomes a junior copywriter at an advertising agency. Chandler is known for his sarcastic sense of humor. Chandler is often depicted as being somewhat of a hapless individual, suffering a lot of bad luck while struggling through life and occasionally struggling with an on-and-off smoking addiction. However, he eventually falls in deep mutual love with Monica and proposes to her at the close of season six, with the two of them marrying at the close of season seven. By the end of series, he and Monica adopt twins, whom they name Jack and Erica. Ross Eustace Geller, Ph. David Schwimmer is a paleontologist at a museum of prehistory, and later a professor of paleontology at New York University. The most intelligent of the six main characters, but at the same time a clumsy, quirky man, Ross is known for being a smart, know-it-all who prides himself on his rationality, despite his clear hopeless romanticism. He is shown to be the most caring of all the six members in the various instances on the show. He has three failed marriages during the series, and his relationship with Rachel is a main storyline throughout the series. In the series finale, Ross and Rachel finally reconcile, deciding to be together once and for all. The character of Ross was developed with David Schwimmer in the minds of writers and Schwimmer was also the first actor to be cast on the show. Schwimmer is the only cast member native to New York City. Jack is more balanced in his attention and care towards both Ross and Monica. Due to his gnawing guilt, Jack develops a secret smoking habit and decides to gift Monica the Porsche. Despite being favored throughout his entire childhood, this makes Ross insanely jealous. Their relationship hits a rough patch when he and Rachel consider getting back together. Rachel is invited to the wedding, but receives a cold reception for jilting Barry while she is there, and a ridiculous speech from Ross which bemuses everyone in the room does not exactly improve the situation for her, until she, in a desperate attempt to salvage some pride, walks onto the stage where the microphone is and starts singing. He has also been called "Barry White", and is possibly[ original research? Barry is portrayed as a horrible, selfish little man who cheats, lies, and belittles other people. Getting both Rachel and Mindy to fall for him also suggests[ original research? Carol dumped and divorced Ross to be with Susan. Susan does not attempt to hide her contempt of Ross and vice versa, but they briefly put aside their differences when Carol gives birth to a boy, whom they all agree, after weeks of argument, to name Ben. Though Ross and Carol are on good terms after their divorce, Ross continues to resent Susan for losing Carol to her. It was just an opportunity to tell a really interesting story. Jessica Hecht originally auditioned to play Monica. The manager of the Central Perk coffee house, who first appears as a background character in "The One with the Sonogram at the End". He is a former actor who once played Bryce on All My Children before that character was "killed in an avalanche. James Michael Tyler was cast as Gunther because he was the only extra who could competently work the cappuccino machine on the Central Perk set. The Seattle Times ranked Gunther as the eighth best guest character of the series in Marcel[ edit ] Marcel live animal actor: A Capuchin monkey that Ross initially keeps as a pet, [e 15] and who provides comic relief for his geeky master. One time Rachel loses him in the city, [e 16] and calls Animal Control" only to learn from Ross that Marcel is an illegal exotic animal that cannot be kept in the city. In a later season Ross questions why he had a monkey as a pet. Janice is one of the few characters besides the six main friends who appears in all of the Friends seasons. Their relationship lasts into the third season, when Janice decides to leave her husband to be with Chandler. Later, Joey sees Janice kissing her husband, who runs a mattress business. In a later episode, the tables are turned on the annoying natured Janice when she has a brief fling with Ross shortly after he has broken up with Emily, as he is unhappy and spends the entire date complaining about everything, causing her to find him insufferable and leave him Ross had expected the reverse to eventually happen, but had been happy to date someone who listened so well to him in the meantime. As Monica and Chandler make plans to have children, [e 29] she offers Chandler advice and support at a fertility clinic. Presumably due to being amused by their wacky, quirky, goofy personalities, Janice seems to enjoy spending time with the six friends, which is somewhat ironic and very much inconvenient for them since none of them can stand to be around her although she seems to be completely blind to the fact that they feel this way, showing almost no awareness whatsoever of the fact that they hate having to put up with her , due to the unbearably irritating nasal New York accent she speaks with, and her annoying machine gun laugh. Heckles[ edit ] Mr. He usually states that items are his, and when the other person states that he does not have one, Mr. Heckles says that he could have one. For instance, when Rachel and Phoebe are searching for the owner of a lost cat, Mr. Paolo[ edit ] Paolo Cosimo Fusco: Terry[ edit ] Terry Max Wright: Monica tries to wean him off drinking but regrets it when he becomes extremely boring. Monica then began drinking on their dates, so that she could sit through his mind-numbingly dull stories. Seven years later, he returns to New York for a brief visit and shares an evening with Phoebe. She first appears in "The One with Mrs. Bing", [e 43] where she meets the gang while on a book tour in New York. After dinner, she kisses Ross. Phoebe refers to Ursula as her " evil twin. Joey becomes attracted to Ursula and they start dating. Ursula tells Phoebe that she is bored with Joey and sarcastically claims that he is smart enough to figure this out on his own without her having to actually tell him implying his stupidity irritated her, hence her naturally nasty reaction , so Phoebe pretends to be her sister to let Joey down gently. Ursula next appears briefly in "The One with the Jam", [e 47] where she is being stalked by a man David Arquette who mistakes Phoebe for her. Phoebe naively begins a relationship with the man in question, but ends it with him when he cannot get over his obsession with Ursula. Phoebe is horrified that Ursula has told Eric that she is a teacher, a member of the Peace Corps , a non-smoker, and attends a church group all lies. The series finale of Mad About You , set 22 years into the future, reveals that after a successful porn career, Ursula becomes Governor of New York. Mindy and Rachel were best friends while growing up and their friendship is tested after Rachel discovers Mindy and Barry are seeing each other. She asks Rachel to be her maid of honor and dress in a garish pink dress. Steve[ edit ] Steve Jon Lovitz: In , Monica tries to impress him in an attempt to get a job at his restaurant, and Phoebe tells him he is welcome to go to her apartment and try her food there, but he gets stoned on the journey there and consequently acts obnoxious. At the end of the episode, Phoebe punishes him by giving him a very painful massage. He is first mentioned in the second episode of the series, [e 8] but only appears twice: In "The One with the Flashback", [e 7] it is learned that he used to be "Cute Naked Guy", but then, in , started putting on weight. For many years, the identity of the actor that played him in his extremely limited appearances was a mystery. It was speculated that Michael G. Hagerty , the actor who played Mr.

Your response will depend on the invitation. Kim Williams and Mr. Brian Jones will" or "will not" attend and editorialize a bit, if you like: The most formal invitations may arrive without a printed response card. In this case, you should write your response on nice stationery, mirroring the language of the invitation: Only the people to whom the invite is specifically addressed are invited. The Gift Always plan on sending a gift when you accept a wedding invitation. At the least, send a congratulatory card before the wedding. Technically, you have up to a year after the wedding date to send a gift, but it makes sense to shop for a gift soon after you decide to go. If the couple has a wedding website , registry information will most likely be there. While this is still the custom in some regions, gifts at the wedding mean the couple has to worry about security, making sure cards stay with boxes and getting them home somehow after the reception. If you have another, special gift idea, by all means, go for it. What to Wear Dress as you would for any other social event held at the hour and during the season of the wedding. Black used to be taboo for weddings, but these days, a black dress is perfect for an evening wedding. The Ceremony You should get to the ceremony on timeâ€”this is not a party to be "fashionably late" for. Also, never consider ditching the ceremony and just showing up for the reception. Ideally, you should arrive at the ceremony site 30 minutes before the time printed on the invitation, and even earlier for a large event wedding guests or more. If the procession is going on, wait until the bride reaches the altar to enter and find a seat. After the recession, wedding guests remain in their seats until the families of the newlyweds have been escorted out. If the receiving line is scheduled postceremony, simply join in the line. This is prime socializing time, so enjoy! When it comes to dancing, guests generally follow the lead of the couple, wedding party and families. Usually the newlyweds dance together first although the first dance sometimes happens later on in the reception. Once the party gets going, though, feel free to dance as much as you want to. Even if you think these traditions are silly, or that something else about the wedding is tacky or inappropriate, always keep your feelings to yourself. When is it appropriate to leave? You should stay at least until after the cake has been cut. Also attempt to give the couple a last hug before you leave.

Heavens, how little and mean and stupid, wicked and ridiculous, she had been--she and so many others of her kind. There was her husband, riding ahead A reaction of regret at her impetuosity came over her. It was a dreadful thing not to love and honour him. Oh, if only he would make it easier; turn round and nod to her kindly, or say a friendly word. She would be loving and forgiving at once. Who could say what troubles were burdening him all the time? And perhaps it was only to spare her that he said nothing. Men were strange in that way; they fancied that a woman suffered less in such estrangement if she did not learn the cause of it. Then--oh, it was incredible! They were at the ford now, and he was riding through the stream without so much as a look behind him But all the same it was a hard struggle to keep her mind in any friendly attitude towards him, or to keep back the fears that would rise to her eyes. She bit her lips, and strove to restrain her feelings. Her horse was already knee deep in the water--and the Hofsa at this part was wide, yet with a fairly strong current. Alma had never ridden through running water before; at first it seemed to her as if the horse had suddenly flung itself sideways against the stream. Instinctively she leaned over herself, farther and farther, against the stream. Ketill, a couple of lengths in front, looked round just as she was about to fall, turned his horse, and seized her a

What if people would not come? What if they thought it cheek their being asked? What if the shooting did not please them? What if they did not please each other? These were the questions which four youth ful serious countenances put to one another at intervals, and for which no one of the four could.

Growing up in the South, the importance of etiquette was instilled in me pretty early on. What was proper, polite and appropriate varied from family to family, but the general concept seemed to exist in every household. But for me, etiquette has been just the opposite. For me, etiquette is all about learning simple tools and tips for making the people in your life and your home feel welcome, loved and comfortable. After polling our editors and readers on Facebook and Twitter, the question that popped up the most revolved around house guests – how to welcome them and how to be a good one. The goal was to add small touches that let us know they cared, while striking a balance between alone time and connecting time that made us feel comfortable. Being a Gracious Host The goal is to make your guests feel welcomed and comforted and like they have space to be on their own as well as ways to connect and be involved with your household. Two days before a visit, I like to do a deep clean around the house, do laundry and stock up on essentials like toilet paper, paper towels and tissues. The extra day ahead of their arrival allows time for laundry delays, etc. I always email and text my address, phone number, transportation information and my Wifi network and password two days before someone arrives. That way they have two ways to find their way to your home without getting lost. Having a copy of the keys for your guest is always nice. It allows them to come and go as they please. I like to attach a little card with suggestions for places in the area to get coffee, shop, find transportation and eat. Nothing makes guests feel more welcomed than having a few creature comforts. In addition to freshly changed sheets which I like to spray with a mild scented linen spray I like to provide: In addition to a freshly cleaned bathroom, I like to provide a stack of clean towels, washcloths and a toothbrush for guests. I put the toothbrush and a travel-sized toothpaste in a clean glass on the counter so they have a little landing space for their toiletries. Slow cooker chili and pasta salad are my faves. You can easily label and serve them or let your guests have them when they want as an easy meal. As polite as it is for them to offer, I always make sure I change the bed sheets and towels after they leave. The main thing to remember is to be as tidy as you can and follow up with a thank you. Sending your host your arrival information is always helpful. It also gives them a good idea of when to prepare for your arrival. To Bring with You: If these are too costly, simply cooking a meal at home and doing the dishes is a good option. Tidying up after yourself is a must. Doing your own dishes, making your bed and wiping down the counter or mirror after using the shower is always helpful. This is the easiest way to avoid awkwardness. Stripping your bed sheets, stacking dirty towels and consolidating them in one space or dropping them in a hamper or washer is great. A thank you note, call or email is a must. Letting someone know you appreciate their hospitality always goes far in being welcomed back again and again.

It is obvious that every guest has their own expectation before they check into the hotel. The guests expect you to understand their needs and prepare for their arrival. In reality, you might be extremely busy with your daily schedule and time is the biggest challenge. Great hotels provide great service to each guest and it requires a lot of staff to go through all of the important details. The early check in and late check out are the most common issues caused by poor communication between the hotel and the guest. As a result, the guest gets angry and writes a negative review on TripAdvisor. Remember that the guest has limited patience and if they are dissatisfied you must respond quickly. Maintain a good reputation and avoid creating a bad one Double check guest special requests in advance. The smallest mistake might lead you into a much bigger problem. If the guest is not happy with your hotel, they might damage your brand and write a negative post on the internet i. How to deal with an unhappy hotel guest? Let us explain one common scenario. The guest called the hotel reception three days in advance and requested for early check in at The guest gets upset because the receptionist that they were talking to on the phone forgot to note down the special request in the system. Here I would like to share with you some tips on how to deal with an angry hotel guest and turn them into a loyal one. Apologize to the guest and ask for forgiveness. First thing is to give a sincere apology and express your sympathy. You must take this matter seriously and make sure that the guest feels that you are very sorry and trying your best to resolve this incident. If there is no room in the same class free at the time and the guest needs to sleep badly, consider to upgrade the room for the guest. Resolve the issue fast and then follow up the feedback After you have decided to send the guest to the upgraded room make sure you follow up for feedback. Check if the guest is now satisfied. Document the issue and analyze the data Learning from the mistake is the best way to improve “ so before the memory fades away you must document the data. Analyze the issue and share the knowledge with your team. This will benefit you and the team because if something similar happens again they will know how to deal with it quickly. Give frequent training to your staff and use new technology to help reduce human error After you have collected and analyzed the data, you might notice that if there are many phone calls between You might need to hire more staff during that hour but hiring more people may break your budget. I suggest you find a smarter solution that will help you to automate most of the work. Here are the solutions that are easy to use and no technical skills are required. Online or express check- in You can find the express check-in feature at Guestjoy. This feature will allow the guest to pre-fill all the important data such as names, passport no. It will speed up the check-in process and lift up guest satisfaction to new heights. It allows guests to submit their special request in advance then the system will automatically send the request to correct department. Now hotel can pre arrange all special requests in advance , hotel transfer, romantic dinner, babysitting without chaos. Collect and review feedback online 12 pm is when most guests check out and this is the time when they are most likely to express any issues they have. Try to use the online feedback collecting tool. This is so simple and you can check all of the answers in real time. It helps to understand the customer feedback better and react to negative comments faster. Think if you have this kind of solution in place how much time the hotel will save. Summary Today, the hotel business is crucial. It is highly competitive and a very sensitive business. Your daily mission will not only make your business profitable but you must think for the future. Personalizing the guest experience, invest in good hotel software and try to improve the quality of service all the time will surely make the guests come back to your hotel.

The host must plan and organize the party, and then attend to the assembled party-goers. Guests, too, need to rise to the occasion, with the Party Animal toning it down at a reserved affair, the Show-Off yielding the spotlight, and the Shrinking Violet making an effort to blossom. Include necessary information for your guests in the invitation: Take care creating your guest list. A great group of people will make any party a success, even if it rains on the picnic or the food is a flop. Make sure guests are greeted warmly, then made to feel welcome throughout the party. Look after each guest as much as you can. Or one friend arrives with an unexpected guest. As discourteous as it is for someone to spring a surprise on you, be gracious. No polite host would ever send an uninvited guest packing. Circulate among your guests, introduce newcomers, and stay with a each group long enough to get a conversation going. Thank people for coming as you bid them good-bye. And do it immediately. Punctuality means different things to people in different locales. In general guests should arrive at or shortly after fifteen minutes or less the time stated on the invitation. Do not, however, arrive early. Same goes for the pinot noir. Moderation is the name of the game. Always thank your hosts enthusiastically when you say your good-byes. A second thank you by phone the day after the party is also a gracious gesture. If the party was formal or given in your honor, written thanks are in order. In fact, a written note is always appreciatedâ€”even after casual parties. You may also be interested in:
