It was a deliverance service against deep-rooted problems in the life of people. The Lord said that there is somebody here saying: You have become a bone that the enemy cannot chew. They planned to chew you alive but God intervened to make you unchewable. There is somebody here that has 5 more days to live. But you were brought here for the first time. Thank that person that brought you because God has cancelled the ordination of death over your life. He also made us to exercise our prophetic muscles with these prayers: Every power assigned to terminate my destiny, you are a LIAR! Where is the Lord God of Elijah? Any power waiting for my obituary, shall die in my place, in the name of Jesus. God will remember me for good, in the name of Jesus. Daniel Olukoya, in his characteristic bluntness warned us not to be deceived by anybody. Reading from JOB Any preacher saying that life is rosy without some measure of trouble is only deceiving the congregation. The sermon is titled: Prayer, he said is a very deep matter, and there are accurate and inaccurate prayers. He said that that the automatic rifle used by a hunter to kill elephants would fail to tackle mosquitoes. Same for the traps that catch rats would fail to catch crocodiles. Helicopter gunships would fail in a desert warfare. Therefore, we must know what type of deep prayer weapons that can scatter deep-rooted problems. Quoting from Daniel Chapter 2, verse 2, and Psalms chapter 42, verse 7, he said that deep-rooted problems require deep-digging prayers. Only the deep can reach the deep. The minerals that give wealth are not found on the surface of the earth. Problems cannot be solved at the same level of knowledge that created them. Many people are still paying the bills of their dead grandfathers. Many such foundations have closed the door of breakthrough against many victims and they did not know the cause. If you handle your problems casually, you may end up being a casualty. Sexual immorality is a river of despair that drowns many ignorant victims. It brings about the transference of poverty, demotion and other spiritual problems. Sex outside marriage is the illegal entry into the spirit realm. Every sex is a spiritual transaction, a spiritual exchange with your sexual partner, not just a casual affair. If you sleep with a witch, you exchange and collect part of his or her witchcraft demons, you too become a witch. Many people today are still struggling with the deep-rooted consequences of the careless sex they had when they were teenagers in secondary schools several years ago. Reuben lost his heritage of excellency, power and dignity on the bed of sexual immorality. Dreaming of being wedded to another, or having sexual intercourse in your dreams could be a dangerous indication of having wicked and jealous spiritual spouses in your life. These spirits supervise the blockage of marriage chances and cause depression, paralysed prayer life, sicknesses and gynecological problems. Deep prayers are needed to terminate and renounce such spiritual marriage contracts, evil marital certificates, wedding tokens and gifts, â€œ if you are in such situation, you shall be delivered today, in the name of Jesus. It blocks the rain of blessing from falling into the life of people. These are evil cries traceable to the voice of aliens from wicked covens. It prevents victims from meditating or pray. Of evil birds crying by windows at night etc. Thunder voice of God! Altars in a compound strengthen satanic influence in that compound, and there are different categories of altars. For example, an altar of human sacrifice is stronger than altar of goat sacrifice. You must pray prayer of desolation against such altars in your environment or habitation. These are wicked instruments of the devil buried either on the ground to harm people or buried in the body of human beings. These materials open the door for satan to dominate and control such places or persons. The navel is spiritual gate into the destiny of man. Some cultures even use the placenta as manure to grow trees dedicated to the child. The head is a symbol of our destiny, and our hair represents our glory. These two materials are used by wicked powers to manipulate and destroy destinies. These are used to attack the lives of people. You must be ready to issue counter-decrees to reverse and destroy this evil instrument. Incisions on any part of the body and evil blood covenants open the gates for satanic decrees to flourish in the lives of many ignorant people. This represents association or gathering of people used to attack either a territory or area or even nations. That is why the Bible in Isaiah 8: Pray the following hot deliverance prayers and you shall be free indeed. Sanitize my environment, in the name of Jesus. Stretch forth your right hand towards the altar or the Heavens and Receive healing power, and anointing for breakthrough , Now lay that right hands on your head and begin to experience the power of God that cannot be insulted. Altars of affliction assigned against me, you are a LIAR! Plantation of darkness in my family, DIE! Any problem in my life, caused by hair manipulation, DIE! Every power submitting my name to any coven, your time is up, DIE! Dark powers supervising my problems, DIE!

Chapter 2 : Transform Your Marriage through the Power of Prayer - Christian Marriage Help and Advice

Editor's Note: The following is a report on the practical applications of Stormie Omartian's new book, Praying Through the Deeper Issues of Marriage, (Harvest House, ). Do you and your spouse.

These past 29 years have been a mess. My life is shattered in a million pieces that can never be put back together again. In the midst of my utter distress I heard God speak to my heart words of comfort: I redeem all things I make all things new. I can take all the hurt, the pain, and the scars. Not only can I heal them, but I can make them count for something. I wondered how could God ever accomplish all that, even though I sincerely believed that all things were possible with Him, because His Word said so. Until this moment I had only received His life. But now I full surrendered mine to Him. I wanted God to take my life and do with it what He wanted. He would certainly do a better job than I had done. I gradually discovered that while receiving Jesus as my personal Savior and being born into the kingdom of God was instant, allowing Him to truly become Lord over my life was a process. I surrendered more and more of my life to Him as I went along, but each time I thought I had given Him my all, I discovered I had only given all I could. So I bought a large, heavy Bible that had four different translations in it. I read the Bible from beginning to end in one translation, then began all over in another. People who saw me lugging that huge Bible to church must have thought I was exceedingly spiritual. Attending church once a week was not enough, so I added Wednesday and Sunday evenings to my schedule. This also opened up possibilities for making more new friends, and I found associating with them a significant source of strength and encouragement. We were married about a year later and soon realized that we had neglected to take one very important step of obedience – that of being baptized in water. Jesus Himself was baptized in order to do what was right, and He commanded us all to do the same. Still cautious about doing something that was merely a religious ritual as opposed to taking a step of obedience with understanding, I studied further. I found out that baptism in water was an act of obedience by which the lordship of Jesus in your life is declared. The past is washed away in the water and you come up cleansed while it remains buried. There was nothing magical about the water itself. The power is not in the water, but in being obedient to the Word of God whether you understand it fully or not. All steps of obedience, and this one especially, carried with it the opportunity for deliverance, freedom, and wholeness, and I desired everything that God had for me. After discussing it with Michael one afternoon, we were baptized together that same night. Still, through all the growth, I continued to struggle with depression. Oddly enough, my depression seemed to be growing in intensity. Every morning when I awoke I was plagued with thoughts of suicide. I was so convinced that Jesus was the answer to every need that I regularly visited the counseling office. The counsel I received always helped, but the problem of depression was never completely eliminated. Even though I had the gift of eternal life and total forgiveness from Jesus, I had a loving pastor who taught me much about God and the Bible, I had a good husband and financial security so I no longer had to work to survive, yet I still felt like I had nothing to live for. What was the matter with me? Was a part of me missing, just like with my mother? I was still afraid that I would end up crazy like her. If I had much to be happy about and yet remained depressed, if I had everything to live for and still wanted to die, then what hope was there for me? As the suicidal feelings increased, Michael urged me to call the counseling office again. She was steeped in the Word of God and had great faith to pray for and see people set free from emotional pain. I entered her office and sat in the chair across the desk from her. She looked up from her papers and gave me a big smile. She had a beautiful face of intelligence, understanding, and warmth, and I felt comfortable confessing my problems and past to her. She listened for a long time, nodding thoughtfully and seeming not the least bit shocked by anything I said. It sounded like a strange activity involving red-eyed demons and whirlwinds, but I could tell by her calm demeanor that this was not what she meant. A lot of people are afraid of deliverance because they think it will change them. Our responsibility is to pray for deliverance from whatever oppression is tormenting you, whether fear or suicidal thoughts or whatever. I felt it lift. The next morning I awoke without any feelings of depression whatsoever –” no thoughts of suicide, no heaviness in my chest, no fearful anticipation of the future. Day after day it was the same. I never again experienced those feelings, nor the paralysis that accompanied them. I had gone into that counseling office knowing Jesus as Savior, but I came out knowing Him also as my Deliverer. I feared I would do to him what had been done to me. I read every book available on the subject of parenting and attended each Christian child-rearing seminar I could find. I tried to do my best with all this good and helpful information, but it was never enough. Kidnapping, drowning, disfiguring accidents, irreparable injuries, diseases, sexual molestation, abuse, or death all played across my mind as possibilities for his future. As much as I tried not to be an overreacting parent, every newspaper, magazine article, or TV newscast on crime made me more concerned for his welfare. Plus we lived in Los Angeles, a city where crime was rampant. It was more than I could handle. How can I ever have peace? My husband and I had dedicated our son to God in a church service, but God wanted more than that. He wanted us to continue giving Christopher to Him on a daily basis. Rather, we would declare ourselves to be in full partnership with God. He would shoulder the heaviness of the burden and provide wisdom, power, protection, and ability far beyond ourselves. In doing this, I learned to identify every concern, fear, worry, or possible scenario that came into my mind as a prompting by the Holy Spirit to pray for that particular thing. When it surfaced again, I prayed about it again. I also learned that I should not try to force my own will on my child in prayer. This only leads to frustration and disappointment for all concerned. Help me to raise him Your way, and may Your will be done in his life. Over the next twelve years God answered my prayers in many wonderful ways, and today I see the results. Today I pray for my adult children. How I started Praying for my Husband My husband and I had problems in our marriage and at its worst point, I prayed for a miracle. That meant each time I prayed for him I had to confess my own hardness of heart. I saw how deeply hurt and unforgiving of him I was. I only want God to convict him of how cruel he has been, I thought. Deliver me from all of it. When Michael became angry, instead of reacting negatively, I prayed for him. I asked God to give me insight into what was causing his rage. I asked Him what I could do to make things better. Every day, prayer built something positive. But when a man marries, he leaves his father and mother and becomes one with his wife Matthew They are a team, one unit, unified in spirit. Can you imagine praying for the right side of your body and not the left? The same is true of you and your husband. If you pray for yourself and not him, you will never find the blessings and fulfillment you want. He gives us whatever we will fall for, whether it be low self-esteem, pride, the need to be right, miscommunication, or the bowing to our own selfish desires. In every broken marriage, there is at least one person whose heart is hard against God. We only see the way it is, not the way God wants it to become. When we pray, however, our hearts become soft toward God and we get a vision. We see there is hope. We have faith that He will restore all that has been devoured, destroyed, and eaten away from the marriage. We can trust Him to take away the pain, hopelessness, hardness, and unforgiveness. We are able to envision His ability to resurrect love and life from the deadest of places. The joy of seeing something hopelessly dead brought to life is the greatest joy we can know. The power that resurrected Jesus is the very same power that will resurrect the dead places of your marriage and put life back into it. We have to go through the pain to get to the joy. We have to believe the part of your relationship that has been eaten away by pain, indifference, and selfishness can be restored. We have to trust that God is big enough to accomplish all this and more. He can heal the wounds and put love back in your heart. Nothing and no one else can.

Do you ever just give up when you disagree? Yielding leads to symptoms like depression and resentment. Do you ever delay difficult discussions or avoid touchy topics? When your communication freezes, you build icy walls of stress and tension. Frozen communication leads to feelings of anxiety and emotional distance. When people have a concern that sits in their head and have no way to talk it through, they feel anxious. Do you bicker, argue or even fight when you disagree? Fighting leads to ill will and excessive anger. It can develop into controlling behaviors, and verbal or even physical abuse. Fighting often results in one partner yielding. And, as noted above, yielding can lead to depression. The flight solution can lead to alienating behaviors like infidelity, addictions like alcohol abuse, or porn, compulsive spending or workaholic tendencies.
