Pin it Prev1 of 50 Next Twists are a top favorite technique in black hairstyles, along with braids. Twists allow extending your natural hair, attaching anything from quality commercial strands to dreadlocks. Many African American women hold themselves back from going natural simply because they have no idea of how they are going to style and protect their natural hair. Here are a couple of nice ideas in pictures, ladies. The diversity of twists knows no limits. There are little tricks to know about twists. The larger your facial features are, and the fuller your figure is, the thicker your twists can be. If you still want thin twists, do not wear them freely hanging, but style them into a voluminous hairstyle. Some women love to have tightly bound twists, while others go for a looser, more romantic look. Whatever you choose, this is a convenient yet beautiful hairstyle.

Long Black Twists The longer your twists, the more impressive the final result. If you are able to pull off very long hair, adding in some twists can be a beautiful expression of your culture and personal style. Long Black Twists Look youthful and stunning with very long twist braids that are styled with height and smoothness. Not sure if you are going to love the look of long, thick twists? The bright side is you can always undo the style and try something else – so why not give it a go? Add in a few accent strands of color for an even more creative look. Beautiful, windblown twists often feature varying lengths and thicknesses, so consider styling your hair with twists thick up top and thinning out past the shoulders. Simply wrap braids on top of your head and secure with some strong hair pins. Twist braids are always in style, and this is a fun way to fancy them up a bit.

Expressive Top Knot Mega long locks call for some long twist style that is ideal for any occasion. Gather half of your braids into a top knot, securing with a hair elastic. Leave the remaining braids flowing long and free. This dramatic style can be paired with chunky jewelry and expressive makeup.

Classic Twist Braids Twist braid styles have certainly evolved over the years, but the classic still remains. Any salon specializing in black hair can create this decades-old weave style that has endured for generations and continues to be popular today. For an upcoming formal event, instead of removing your braids, keep them in and try one of many fancy twist hairstyles out there. Treating your hair as if it were straight and untwisted, wrap your braided locks into a classic updo. From some delicious honey caramel to an eye-popping burgundy, there are plenty of hair colors for black hair that look amazing.

Thick Sideswept Twists Senegalese twist hairstyles work well on thick hair, and they can also be placed in a weave. Go for a pop of color – perhaps hot pink or lime green – to keep things looking fun and American.

Cascading Twist Braids Senegalese twist styles are beautiful in any length, but these long twists are definitely worth a double take. Start with a regular thick African twist, and then reduce the thickness of braids as hair descends. When you lift and swirl those gorgeous twists into a bun the thinner and thicker parts will blend beautifully.

Tousled hair is popular right now, and twist styles are covered by this trend.

Twisted Fauxhawk Take those twist braids to the next level with a fauxhawk style that is both fun to wear and stunning to see.

Pompadour with a Twist Pompadours are fun to wear too, plus they can elongate a round face and soften strong facial features. This stylish front bump works with both short and long hair, making it a flattering statement for all.

Long and Loose Braids Big twist braids are ideal for hair that wants to be shown off.

Sideswept Twist Braids Keep your twists in check with an asymmetrical twisted hairstyle, side swept and secured to last all day. Play around with different hair colors and embellished hair clips to keep things interesting.

Bun Twist This twist style works well for thick hair as well as locks that are on the thinner side. Even better, it is flattering on older women while still gorgeous on younger gals.

A Twist in Twist Braids All of those braids can get in the way as you go about your day, so keep it simple with a side twist that twists the twists. Hair can be secured pulled back with a large clip or strong elastic.

High Ponytail Braided Style When it comes to hair twists hairstyles, these can be very diverse. Gather up either all or a part of your twists and secure with some thick elastic that matches your hair color.

Braid Beads Both large and small twist styles benefit from some bling. Add in hair beads, jewels or other embellishments to keep things looking modern and a bit on the fancy side.

A Weave of Color There are many advantages to a weave as opposed to natural hair braids. The weave tends to be very shiny and luminous, and it also gives you an opportunity to add any color without causing damage to your natural hair. This woven hairstyle uses a bit of caramel hair color as an accent. Consider bringing some fun curls into your hairdo, along with some streaks of blonde. The end result is as unique as you are. High Twisted Bun Finally, if you just need to get your hair up and out of your face on a warm summer day or during a morning workout, twist your braids into thick sections and then gather it all into a bun that is angled high enough to be away from the neck. Multicolored Twist Hairstyle Besides a beautiful twist style, sometimes a color can make a world of difference. Bring drama and uniqueness to your style by introducing some strands of a contrasting color, while keeping others the natural dark hue. African Inspired Hair Twists The women of African nations are known for their lovely, intricate and yet practical hairstyles. Embrace a Western world version of an African hairstyle with thick, long twists that flatter most faces and hair types. Tired of your natural afro or want something that allows hair to be a little longer? Both large and small twists look great down or up. Large Twists with Embellishment Dark, long hair comes with a distinct advantage of being able to display hair embellishments in a truly stunning way. Try some gold hair bling or a brightly colored scarf. Twisted Redhead Bring some color to your twists to breathe new life into an otherwise heavy hairstyle. When twisting both hues together for a unique look, you will get a beautiful, summer-inspired look that cannot be easily duplicated. With the zigzag pattern being set with the braids, the twists lay in a natural state toward the bottom. When the golden blonde on top blends with the dark brown underneath, you are getting a fabulous ombre effect that looks unusual and special in twisted hairstyles. Two Strands Twist Hairstyle Twists are different from braids because twists only use two strands instead of three. Twists are a great, creative choice as they can vary in thickness, texture and length, and last for weeks. Styling Long Twists Take a cue from the islands and let your twists get beach-inspired. Using an untypical hue for twists is one way to personalize your hairstyle. And adding in some shaved designs at the nape will only enhance your originality. Long Twist Braids Big, thick and dramatic – a truly stylish way to rock long twists without conforming too closely to your peers. Creatively Twisted Updo With plenty of volume and a pop of fun color, this twisted updo utilizes thick braids and some serious strength. A multi-directional updo adds a hint of glamour, while wearing them down lends a carefree persona to your style. Senegalese Twist Styles Add some drama and dimension to your Senegalese twists with a contrasting strand that pops out of a gathered style. Paired with shaved sides and nape, this look will make a splash in the neighborhood. Gathered Kinky Twist Braids Pull hair up into a messy bun just as easily with braids or twists as you do with undone hair, while pulling off a totally different effect! Braids of any length can be worked into an updo, but medium twists will often work best. You can also incorporate a variety of styles into your repertoire, including braids, chignons and ponytails. Big Twist Braids With length that seemingly lasts forever, big twist braids are beautiful and fun to wear. Pull your twists into two high ponytails, let them fall long and loose. Two-Tone Senegalese Twists If you want a rest from having to manage kinky, puffy and wild hair, get these perfect Senegalese twists. They are easily styled into a high bulky bun, chunky braid, fancy half updo or a cute simple pony. Thick and Stunning If you love your natural hair but want something a bit different, check out these statement thick braids that are gathered at the shoulders and tucked under for added body and a natural look. Extra Long Purple Rope Twists Thick extra long twists will easily become a main attractant of your look, especially if you choose an interesting color. Dark purple is a good choice. Sweeping your rope twists to one side, you already get a chic hairstyle. Note that if you want to rock rope twists, you need distinct eye-brows. The asymmetric headband braid is a decorative element of this hairstyle that also performs a practical function. It holds the freely hanging twists and fixes them in a sort of a low side pony – simple and cute! Messy Twisted Updo Glossy twist extensions hide vulnerable natural hair from the exposure to aggressive agents and provide you with gorgeous styling options, while you are growing out your hair. You can arrange a big messy bun updo, braid them into a statement fishtail braid or gather in a chic ponytail. Twisted-In Colorful Dread Locks Looking at this picture, nobody will probably deny the fact that well-kept dreadlocks are a beautiful sight. Compact Braided Bun This radiant look is created with twisted-in extensions, offering an interesting color, fantastic texture and variability of styling options while your natural hair is growing out. This one is featuring a high braided bun, twisted compactly around a ponytail. As you have probably noticed, twists make gorgeous buns, but although basically the listed hairstyles turn out to be much the same in their design, they look very different and exclusive in every particular case. Prev 1 of 50 Next.

This style is not only simple but easy to do as well. The most common method is braiding your natural hair into cornrows, after which extensions are looped through the cornrows using a crochet hook. Face framing layers make it flattering without being too bulky, while the side part adds extra volume on top. If you like this type of crochet you can buy it here. Also known as rope twists, this style is achieved by twisting extensions around loose natural hair, or by looping pre-twisted hair into cornrows. Because this is a long term protective style, remember to moisturize your natural hair beforehand. This side swept crochet style features blonde ombre ends for a big, glamorous style that grabs attention without being high maintenance. These crochet kinky twists are not only much quicker to achieve, but also are very inexpensive, and cause no pulling that might result in unwanted hair loss. To get these curly ends, try adding small perm rods to extensions. If you like this type of crochet twists you can buy it here. Give these crochet coils a try! These crochet coils give a perfect wash and go look while protecting your natural hair. The heart shaped cut is flattering to almost any face shape, and the shorter length makes it an incredibly chic yet manageable style. This glamorous style can be easily embellished with a few bright colored strands or braid jewels. Hints of chestnut brown ombre add a pop of color while remaining subdued enough to make this croshay braids style appropriate in any workplace. This faux undercut mimics the silhouette of a shaved side without the major commitment of taking clippers to your hair. Crochet braids are added to most of the head, while one side is left in a french braid or a series of smaller cornrows. This style can be street or chic depending on how you want to style it. The end result is a young, edgy style that goes with everyday outfits or chic evening style. This soft, romantic style is a modern classic that suits almost any occasion. To get a look this natural, be sure that hair is well moisturized and evenly braided before adding extensions. This electric purple shade is bright, adventurous, and perfect for spring and summer styles. To get a toned-down version of this look, mix the purple with a darker more natural shade. Play with tightness of curls or added color to suit your own individual style. With hints of brown that give some softness to the style, these jumbo curls are the perfect balance of sweet femininity and sophistication. To help maintain these curls, try placing them in Bantu knots at night and apply your favorite oil or anti-humidity serum. Getting this look is as easy as using extra long extensions in your crochet braids. This voluminous wavy style has the natural look of brushed out waves, and the angled ends in this particular cut are flattering on women with an inverted triangle or heart-shaped faces. If you like this type of Havana crochet twist you can buy it here. If you like this type of crochet braids with Marley hair you can buy it here. If you have a party or a wedding coming up, you can have the easiest and cutest look of the night by pairing your gorgeous evening gown with one little lace braid hidden somewhere in the rest of your hair. Easy Braid Hairstyle Everyone often sneaks a braid or two on the top layer of their hair. In this fun twist on the look, the braid goes underneath the rest of your tresses. You can get this style with a four strand braid, increasing the visual thickness so it stands out more. Get the Tutorial From MademoiselleRuta! Look at that gorgeous curve! Buns can be boring without the right pizzazz, but this is just the right addition to give your look every bit of flare it needs to waltz you through the night. You can have a beautiful style without the time and effort! This look will only take two minutes to master; how could you pass up on that? This trendy style works just as well with jeans and a blouse as it does with something dressy. To get this pretty look, start braiding at your part and work downward in the dutch style. And once you master it, you can add in a cool accent like a string of pearls, chain or ribbon that makes the style very unique. This simple look was created with a dutch fishtail braid that was pulled at, wrapped and pinned at the end to make a sort of voluminous bun. For the best result, curl hair before you braid and pull it loose at the end. Dutch Mohawk Braid If you have thick hair, then this simple messy style was made for you. Dutch braid your hair curving the braid to one side allowing for a loose, imperfect tension and then finish off half way down the ends. Hide the pony holder with a messy wrap. For the final touch, pull at the braid to make it chunkier and messier. Easy Braided Formal Style Easy hairstyles can be so chic—they look like you just threw them together. To get this effortless style, go for a low horizontal dutch braid. Simply dutch braid your hair across the nape, working from one side to the other. This works best for medium length hair. Perfect Dutch Pigtail Braids For an ultra-feminine style that can be dressed up or down, go for dutch pigtail braids. You can braid with a loose tension and pull some wisps out at the end. Messy Dutch Crowns The cutest modern hairstyles are those easy braided looks you can do all by yourself. You may try this look as around-the-head braids or go for two pigtails that are wrapped around the nape of the neck and pinned up next to each other. This hairstyle would look beautiful with just about any flowy dress and some dangly earrings. Take a section of hair above your ear for a braid and clip it out of the way. Then create an elegant french twist out of remaining hair. Next braid the saved section loosely and bring the braid across the roll, tucking the end of the braid inside. This is an idea for a creative half updo for medium and long hair. These lacy criss crossed fishtails remind palm twigs and look like perfect accent pieces for a summertime hairstyle. Cute Chignon with Braids This cute braided look can be done in a few simple steps. Section off the front section of your hair and divide it into two parts. Clip them out of the way. Next create a low bun in the back. Then dutch braid the hair in the front and wrap the braids around the back of your head above the bun. Hairstyles with such cool braids work in any situation! Gorgeous Halo Braids Of all the currently trendy hair styles that will boost your confidence one hundred percent, this is the one you need to try today. It is so chic. Because this cute easy look can go with your normal wardrobe—no fancy dress needed for this double braid. Elegant Curls with Lacy Braids It can be easy to get in a hair slump and just be lazy when it comes to long hair. This hairstyle will help you show off your long locks. Create two dutch braids and join them in the back. Braided Top Knot We also have some gorgeous solutions when it comes to braids for long hair. This simple ballerina bun is perfect for the days when you want your long hair out of the way but you still want to look chic and put together, of course! Well, throw your hair in a ponytail, braid it all the way down and wrap into a bun. Bun with Braided Bangs For braid styles that are totally outside the box, think of the braid like an accent instead of the main event. For this updo, section off your bangs or a section of hair above the forehead and braid it with a curve. Feed the end of the braid into a pretty sock bun. Messy French Braid and Bun This pretty style is a breeze to copy. The main trick is to find a metal clip that is similar to the tone of your hair—silver if you have cool toned hair like platinum or ash brown, and copper or gold if you have warm toned hair. Topsy Fishtail Braid Simple hairstyles often blend a few different styles and end up looking quite fancy. This hairstyle is created by, first, making a smooth pool through ponytail and then braiding a fishtail style braid. One key braiding essential to buy is small, clear elastics. If not, then this beautiful style might just give you the inspiration you need to start practicing. The two types of braids you need to learn are the dutch braid and the dutch fishtail braid. Then you can mix them in any way you please! Easy Bun with two Side Braids Want a cute hair style that is ridiculously simple to create but looking completely amazing? To get this look, separate out some hair near your hairline. Then spray the rest of your hair with a texturizing spray or a salt spray and tease it. Make a low bun with a bouffant. To finish, add some accent braids, a hair accessory, and pretty wisps. Soft and Elegant Braided Updo For quick hairstyles that are elegant and classy, try mastering the art of loose tension.
