But what if we press for a less culturally controlled and more biblically defined understanding? Several years ago, I worked my way through the major justice passages in the Bible: My less-than-exciting conclusion was that we should not oversell or undersell what the Bible says about justice. There are also plenty of warnings against treating the helpless with cruelty and disrespect. On the other hand, justice, as a biblical category, is not synonymous with anything and everything we feel would be good for the world. Doing justice means following the rule of law, showing impartiality, paying what you promised, not stealing, not swindling, not taking bribes, and not taking advantage of the weak because they are too uninformed or unconnected to stop you. Does this mean giving to the poor is wrong? Should the rich man give to the poor? A good man does what is good. A good man shows compassion. A good man sacrifices his comfort willingly for the sake of others. Just look at Jesus, who is our ultimate model of this kind of love and grace. A bad man hoards his wealth and has no compassion on the needy. Not giving to others is wrong. Help us champion truth, freedom, limited government and human dignity. Receiving the money you have earned is justice. Taking money that someone else has earned is injustice. Giving is something different altogether. When you give, you are not giving a person what he has earned; you are graciously showing mercy out of love. There are some categories of political ideas that do argue that wealth equality is a matter of justice i. Why Does This Matter? Why should this matter to us as Christians? It matters because one can only understand the gospel if one understands the true meaning of justice â€” i. We dare not confuse the categories of justice and grace because understanding the gospel depends on understanding the distinction between justice receiving what one has earned and grace receiving good things one has not earned. What then shall we say that Abraham, our forefather according to the flesh, has found? For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. For what does the Scripture say? But to the one who does not work, but believes in Him who justifies the ungodly, his faith is credited as righteousness, just as David also speaks of the blessing on the man to whom God credits righteousness apart from worksâ€. For the promise to Abraham or to his descendants that he would be heir of the world was not through the Law, but through the righteousness of faith. For if those who are of the Law are heirs, faith is made void and the promise is nullified; for the Law brings about wrath, but where there is no law, there also is no violation. For this reason it is by faith, in order that it may be in accordance with grace, so that the promise will be guaranteed to all the descendants, not only to those who are of the Law, but also to those who are of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all. Justice demands that He save everyone equally! The gospel requires a clear distinction between these two concepts. Both justice and grace are good, and they each play a distinct and necessary part in the gospel. This is the message of the gospel. But now apart from the Law [grace] the righteousness of God has been manifested, being witnessed by the Law and the Prophets, even the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ for all those who believe â€ for all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God, being justified as a gift by His grace through the redemption which is in Christ Jesus; whom God displayed publicly as a propitiation [justice] in His blood through faith â€ so that He would be just and the justifier [justice and grace, separate and distinct concepts] of the one who has faith in Jesus. Thankfully, in economic matters as well as the gospel, there is not only justice; there is also grace. And because of grace, we each willingly give to the poor what they have not earned, at our own cost, and this is also good. Confusing the two terms in economic situations leads to a confusion between the concepts â€” a confusion that affects not only economics, but also Christian theology, preventing comprehension of the gospel. Make no mistake, the two categories are separate. Grace is not justice. The gospel depends on it.

Another video , made after Sadad was liberated, shows more graphic atrocities. According to a report issued by forensics, two of those murdered were young girls, each named Mary: As happens frequently in Egypt and other Islamic nations, the security forces charged with protecting the church were seen leaving their posts immediately before the massacre began. Similarly, although Christians are habitually killed in Muslim countriesâ€”as this monthly series attestsâ€”with little condemnation or even acknowledgment by the U. Apostasy, Blasphemy, Proselytism Bangladesh: However, local council chairman Rafiqul Islam Faruk joined around demonstrators Sept. The following day, the Christians were summoned to his office. Said one of the Christians: That is why I pretended to accept Islam, but faith in Christ is the wellspring of my life. I do not know how long we can grin and bear it. We want religious freedom. We want to practice our religion freely. The chairman and his associates had already beaten some of those Christians three years ago for accepting Christianity. Mariam Naqqash, a female convert to Christianity, was sentenced to four years in prison by a court in Tehran. Over Iranian converts to Christianity have been arrested over the past two years, according to opposition websites. Charles Matole, pastor of the Redeemed Gospel Church, was found shot dead while still sitting with a Bible on his lap: The pastor was receiving threatening messages by text previously. We will not be responsible for any law-and-order situation in the city if the police fails to keep its assurance. It is becoming so normal now to watch as these crimes against Christians occur day by day and nothing is done. Still insisting that Susan Jasmine Zulkifli, a Christian woman appointed governor of the sub-district of Lenteng Agung, in West Java, be removed solely because of her faith see September report , Muslim protesters stepped up their threats, including by carrying a coffin in a protest march consisting of some Muslimsâ€”a clear death threat to the womanâ€”and waving flags symbolic of death. The Christian woman was promoted in June by the Governor of Jakarta, who said in response: Recently, for example, a suicide bomb went off outside the home of Christian politician Emad Youhanna in Rafigayn, part of the Kirkuk province, injuring 19 people, including three of his children. Several more bomb attacks have also taken place in the northern city of Erbil, for which al-Qaeda claimed responsibility. Church leaders in Baghdad say that there are attacks on Christians every two or three days. Muslims are appropriating Christian land in the historically Christian nation. According to Agenzia Fides: Across the Country there are outbreaks of clashes due to problem regarding land. Last week, in the Christian village of Alma district of Zghorta residents had complained that the Muslims of the area of al-Fuar had begun to build houses without permission. Already at the end of August, the same Maronite Patriarch Bechara Boutros Rai had called Christians to limit the sale of their property to avoid jeopardizing the demographic-confessional balance. Mario Rodrigues, a priest of Karachi. It serves two purposes: To document that which the mainstream media does not: Sometimes it is a combination. Because these accounts of persecution span different ethnicities, languages, and localesâ€”from Morocco in the West, to India in the Eastâ€”it should be clear that one thing alone binds them: Islamâ€”whether the strict application of Islamic Sharia law, or the supremacist culture born of it.

They come for the architecture - the Victorians punctuated by a scattering of Prairie School, whose most famous practitioner, Frank Lloyd Wright, draws onlookers in droves. They also come to see where Ernest Hemingway grew up. They come most of all for the diversity, a place where white kids and black kids grow up comfortably together and where, according to the last census, more than 20 languages are spoken in Oak Park homes. They come for the schools and the two hospitals. They come for the two CTA rapid transit lines and the Metra line and the Eisenhower Expressway, all of which make Chicago so accessible. They come for the culture and the restaurants and the 12 distinct shopping districts. They come because the residents are as educated as they are opinionated, as creative as they are progressive, as tolerant as they are welcoming. They come because we have a fascinating history, a promising future and a stimulating here and now. An unbroken string of Kettlestrings live here into the 21st century. On a hike, James Scoville stops to rest on the ridge, the geological wrinkle that runs through Oak Park and serves as a continental divide. He decides to build his house on what is now Scoville Park Lake Street and Oak Park Avenue, then opens the Scoville Institute, next door, our first library, where our award-winning, very modern public library now sits. River Forest and Forest Park form one community known as "Harlem. Oak Park remains part of Cicero Township until it declares independence in Both villages turn into testaments to temperance as Henry Austin buys out the last tavern and takes an axe to the last barrels of booze. Oak Park stays "dry" until, River Forest until But post-WWII malls siphon off shoppers. A Lake Street pedestrian mall in the s and s fails to change our fortunes. Dwight Follett and cohorts lead an uprising against the Republican establishment in the s. An expressway burrows through on the south side of town, and to the north, the Lake Street el is elevated. No more street level trains to wait for. Progressive politics in Oak Park lead to Open Housing marches in the s, which result in the landmark Fair Housing Ordinance of Managed integration becomes our mantra. Stable diversity becomes our slogan. In the s, residents realize, "Hey, the largest collection of Frank Lloyd Wright structures 25 is located right here. Festival Theatre offers Shakespeare as well as American stage classics al fresco in Austin Gardens during the summer months and indoors in cooler weather. Open Door Repertory rounds out the repertoire. All have ample auditoriums. Roberts A-frame on Chicago Avenue, offers classes to students and also hosts exhibits by its members. Galleries galore dot the business districts, but are largely clustered in the Oak Park Arts District along Harrison Street, east of Ridgeland. Sounds abound in a variety of venues. The villages share a highly regarded community symphony. The Oak Park and River Forest public libraries host lectures, readings, films, exhibits and musical performances throughout the week, all free. The Book Table and Magic Tree Bookstore, independents who have found ways to thrive amid the large chains, sponsor author readings and signings. The Park District of Oak Park and Concordia University offer outdoor summer concerts, and churches in both towns double as concert halls during the indoor choral and chamber music season. A number of restaurants feature musicians as well. And keep watch on the Calendar at OakPark. We cover it all. They form a giant "H" when you look on the map of this 4. Four K-5 schools form a spine up the east side of the village, more or less along Cuyler Avenue, and four more line up along Kenilworth on the west side. The two high schools Oak Park and River Forest High School and Fenwick are also located in the center of town, just a few blocks from one another. The parks mirror this pattern, with a few extras thrown in for geographical distribution. The intention was that every kid should be able to walk to his school or her park. Even police officers walk their beats. The 12 business districts, three historic districts and two branch libraries one north, one south underscore the neighborhood notion. There is some competition. River Forest, ironically, suffered a green space shortage until the early s, when a park boom began. The local park district now oversees 10 parks including a "triangle," a "parkway," a "square," and a "commons" totaling 29 acres. A good chunk of that was added when the Dominican Priory sold off land that is today Priory Park. Geographically more compact 2.

Jakes , this includes Dr. This is a place T. Jakes certainly does not belong. He is clearly in the very same WF camp as false teachers such as Kenneth Copeland: But I respected him as a man of God and we just prayed over it and received it. Jakes with such well-known Word of Faith and Counterfeit Revival teachers raises troubling questions about him. However, in this time of spiritually prissy postmodernism way too many people are afraid to make anything close to a stand for proper biblical doctrine. We must look at the evidence as if in a court of law and T. Jakes is on trial for being a teacher of Word Faith doctrine. You will recognize them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thornbushes, or figs from thistles? A healthy tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a diseased tree bear good fruit. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. Thus you will recognize them by their fruits. Just a few days ago T. Jakes tweeted the following: As I previously pointed out e. Jakes and Paula White , a gigantic elephant in the room concerning Jakes is his close relationship with Paula White. I told you above that he helped launch her upon the Christian community. Jakes Is To Me. Her career got a megaboost when she met Bishop T. Jakes, who is black, helped catapult White to superstardom â€” particularly among black women â€” when he invited her to speak at his Woman Thou Art Loosed Conference in This will also be a coming wave of the future within evangelicalism.
