I can see it now Day 1 - Arrive Joburg. Round of 16 games. A Room With A View of street festivals and occasional hooliganism! Day 2 - Joburg. France appeals to the U. Motion denied due to lack of quorum. Day 3 - Joburg. South Africa, in a major upset, beats Brazil!!! Day 4 - Drag myself to the airport. Transfer to Mfuwe, by way of Lusaka. Day 8 - Singita Luangwa. Day 9 - Singita Luangwa. Day 10 - Transfer to Cape Town for seven nights. Stay at the only hotel in town that has not pre-screened for hooligans and has managed to setup a roadblock at Camps Bay to keep them out. Twelve Apostles Hotel, 7 nights. Day 11 - Semifinals. USA knocks out Germany to send all the Germans home, allowing me to enjoy the rest of my vacation! You cannot fully appreciate Germans until you have been forced to take a 10 hour tour with them through the Atacama Desert in Chile, stopping every 15 minutes to take a picture of wildflowers, yet being yelled at in German when you take 5 extra minutes shopping! Day 12 - Semifinals. South Africa knocks out England for the worst beating since the Zulus handed the British their majestic heads on a platter! This sets up a final game for the ages Day 13 - Three rest days before the final game of the World Cup. Hang out at the Twelve Apostles pool, and have waiters bring me rotten fruit and eggs, to toss at the occasional hooligan that gets past the roadblock at Camps Bay and tries to rush up the hillside to the Twelve Apostles swimming pool area! Day 14 - Twelve Apostles Hotel. Aaaaahhh, the most comfortable beds in the world, that is when I am not napping on my balcony, listening to the nearby waves crashing below, far away from the hooliganism that has overtaken the Cape Grace and Table Bay Hotel, now firmly under the control of Hooligans! Day 15 - In preparation for the big day tomorrow, spa treatments galore. While others are celebrating their drunkenness, I will bask in a full day spa treatment, and finish the day with a little hike in the trails behind the Twelve Apostles Hotel that offer an amazing view of the Atlantic Ocean and surrounding mountain range. While I am having fun with this itinerary, I will let everyone draw their own conclusions as to the results! Day 17 - Private charter to Victoria Falls. Not quite sure why all those South Africans are throwing themselves over the edge of the falls. Two nights at Chuma House. Day 18 - Chuma House. I must say, my stay has not been as pleasant as possible. First time in the last three weeks that there will only be 10 other guests. My luck would have it that one of the guests would be former President George Duh Bya Bush - and a few secret service agents. Can I get a voucher for next year??? Fortunately, after discovering that this is NOT a hunting lodge, he packs his bags and departs on the very first day, leaving scaredtodeath and I with the entire Little Mombo camp for ourselves!!! Day 20 - Little Mombo.

Well Done my Team, Thank you for your participation and to all who have contributed, it has been amazing.

Jul 01, Nancy Rossman rated it really liked it First a disclaimer: Once a few years ago in a moment of contention my husband blurted out that I was "such a princess" to which I replied, "No, Queen. Thus his nickname of me as Queenie has stuck. And so this year on our anniversary when he was out of ideas this book became one of my gifts. We shared a goo First a disclaimer: We shared a good laugh. After ten pages, I knew I would finish it, despite my distaste for page books. A handsome Irish man has fathered a child with an Indian and he bolts, leaving them poor and without means to support themselves. But the mother is enterprising, resourceful, and proud. The child, Queenie, is gorgeous. Exotic, light-skinned, and also determined. Mad about as a child but in love with her as she enters teenage years. Surely Morgan can find a way to get them "home", as in England where Queenie thinks all of her problems will be solved. His golden touch on the saxophone has allowed him to walk the line of where his "race" will be accepted. Queenie insists that Morgan steal from a wealthy English woman whom he beds on occasion so that they will have the required funds to bolt. This tale is twists and turns with all that happens in England and then to America. Queenie turns heads and uses her beauty in a variety to get ahead. Her many secrets pull her down, time and time again. Brilliant, really and left me panting to the last sentence. Must see what else this author wrote since he was unknown to me.

Yes, it IS an amazing loaf of bread. Smells and feels like a traditional loaf. Holds up just like one. What more could anyone want from a healthy loaf of bread? Not eggy, not soggy, not dry. Forget shop-bought stodgy bread that leaves you bloated. Not to mention the fact that the original ingredient "wheat" was very likely GM and sprayed with toxic herbicides. The only difference is some added colouring. Click here to learn more truths about bread. Yes I know there are some slightly better breads available, but seriously? They taste absolutely awful and cost a fortune. I was over complicating my bread recipes. Simplification worked to a large degree with lupin flour "my favourite flour EVER. However, the result was an authentic-looking loaf that tasted OK, but deteriorated soon after. It became soggy and sticky to handle, while toasting made it very brittle. Nice, but not good enough. Protein powder and Bread. A match made in heaven! Who would have known! I know there are many kinds you can buy. Isolate, concentrate, whey, rice, soy, pea! I admit I know absolutely nothing about the differences and even less about which is best and which should be avoided. Nor do I wish to spend time on the internet reading all this mind-boggling information about protein. You can find it by clicking here. Unless you count salt and baking powder. That will make it 6 ingredients in total. The main 4 ingredients are: Psyllium husk is best known as a laxative. A note about psyllium: Therefore, results can never be guaranteed to be identical each time. The Easiest Bread Making Method. It happened to me once. In my pathetic attempt to minimise washing up, I shoved everything in one bowl, without even sifting the baking powder. Weigh the cream cheese in the second bowl, then soften it using a hand whisk. Pour into a lightly buttered loaf tin. Bake for about 35 minutes. Using the same size tin indicated in the recipe below, It will only rise to about cm. But who can resist cheese on toast or a toasted sandwich when your home made bread is delicious and just 0. Here is the recipe. The recipe below has been amended accordingly.

Gr8 job Queenie & @jessicaaliceday https: Well done Queenie Luu for beautifully presenting our study validating EULAR/ACR criteria for myositis in an Australian.

Meet Queenie who finds new purpose in her life following the death of her husband. Queenie â€” Coming to Life again Queenie Denton contemplated the crumbs on the plate in front of her. She barely remembered eating the toast and marmalade and wondered if she was losing her marbles. It was six weeks since her husband of fifty-five years, Donald, had died peacefully clasping the silver cross he had bought at a charity shop in the high street the month before. He was not a religious man, but he had worked for an insurance company as man and boy, and she supposed he thought it prudent at eighty years old to cover his bets. She on the other hand went to church every Sunday and was a member of the church ladies group that arranged the flowers and kept the place spotless between services. They called themselves the Holy Dusters, and she realised with a pang that she missed seeing her friends every few days. She must make the effort and get back to normal. She could just imagine what her husband would have to say about the state of the house, and the fact that she had not put her make-up on for weeks. There were a few other things she had neglected since Donald had suddenly collapsed and been rushed into hospital. She had cancelled her regular Wednesday morning hair appointment and she could see that her normally pristine and beautifully manicured nails needed immediate attention. She picked up her plate, cup and saucer and popped them into the kitchen sink before reaching for the telephone on the wall. Two days later, looking and feeling more like herself; Queenie put the telephone down from talking to Mavis who was in charge of the dusting rota. She would be starting back next Tuesday; giving her time to get her own house in order. But, with Donald gone and nobody to fuss over, she needed a project and immediately her mind veered to thoughts of her as yet single granddaughter Penny. Now there was a challenge if ever there was one. Penny was a brilliant psychiatrist who worked at the local hospital. Queenie loved her dearly, but having set her heart on being a great grandmother before she followed Donald into the great beyond, she felt it was time for an intervention. The following Saturday with her house back to spick and span order, Queenie piled a tray with cups, coffee pot and red velvet cupcakes and carried it into the living room where Penny was removing her coat and scarf. Are you back to baking again? It was understood that there was an arrangement and nobody really thought anything about it. Of course it was much more difficult when two young men moved in together; which never seemed fair to me. But, our love was strong enough to weather any storm and I just wish that you could experience that for yourself. He was two years ahead of me studying medicine, and when we met at one of the dances we clicked immediately. We moved in to a flat together a year before he finished his degree, and he was planning on doing his hospital rotations here in England until I finished my own. However his parents came over to visit shortly before he graduated, and told him in no uncertain terms, that they would disown him if he chose to marry someone not of their faith. She was not going to make her debut on the international worldwide webby thing looking anything but her best. Doris led her into her dining room where the two of them sat side by side in front of a computer screen. She slipped a piece of paper across the table to Doris who picked it up to study. Two weeks later Penny was surprised to get a phone call from her grandmother at nearly midnight, and was immediately concerned that Queenie was unwell. She assured her granddaughter that all was fine, but she needed to see her on Saturday morning urgently. Penny duly arrived at ten in the morning and was relieved to see that Queenie was resplendent in pink jacket and beautifully presented as normal. Her only concern was that she looked slightly flushed and over excited, and she wanted to get to the bottom of it right away. Penny who had no idea that her grandmother even knew how to switch on a computer was stunned at this surprising development. He served in the Israeli army for ten years before going to America where he is a top heart surgeon at a large hospital in New York. Her heart was thumping madly in her chest and she could barely breathe. At that moment she saw a black taxi pull up outside the house and the back door open. A tall man with slightly greying hair got out and leant through the front window as he paid the driver. He turned and opened the gate, walking briskly to the front door. He turned as he caught a movement in the bay window and after a moment of simply staring at each other, he smiled, his eyes crinkling in a very familiar way. She heard Queenie walking down the hall to open the door and then footsteps across the parquet flooring. Penny held her breath with her eyes closed as she felt his presence behind her and then his two hands gently resting on her shoulders. He pulled her back in to him and whispered in her ear. Please forgive me and tell me it is not too late. She was sure Donald would not approve, but as Doris reminded her, you are only young once. Arriving on the backs of geese and swans, they seek sanctuary in the magic garden of The Storyteller who welcomes them to the Emerald Island, a place where rain is almost a daily feature. Grateful for their safe haven and the generosity of their host, the queen and her courtiers embrace their new surroundings with delight. As the seasons change throughout the year, they come into contact with many of the human and animal inhabitants of the garden and the surrounding forest, all of whom have a story to tell. This is a magical fairy story infused with fantasy and romance, as well as opportunities for mischief in the company of goblins, witches and Lerpersians. Suitable for ages 10 to years old. I shared her anxiety as she searched for a new home where her people and bees could be safe and participated in her delight when the perfect spot is found on the faraway Emerald Island. It is not an easy task to undertake such a big move but the fairies managed it admirably with the help of some of their friends. The Storyteller, a delightful elderly man, is a wonderful new character you will meet and get to know and he proves himself to be kind, thoughtful and understanding. In no time at all the fairies are settled into their new home, kitted out in clothing more suitable for the colder, damper weather and even aided in meeting new friends. Of course, life is never straightforward and Queen Filigree and the fairies experience their ups and downs, losses, romances and worries as they adapt to their new environment. There are plenty of celebrations and happy moments to smooth the way and it all makes for a very entertaining read. The illustrations in this book are deserve a mention as they are amazing. They are the creations of talented illustrator Donata Zawadzka. Read the reviews and buy the book Amazon UK:

Time sure does fly fast! I just simply love to be here! People are friendly and happy, they sing in the train, policemen tells jokes for random people at train stations Everyone warmly welcomes you wherever you go! Last week went really really fast. I were here taking care of the dogs from Monday to Thursday. I trained puppies, took dogs to fields, read some Sheltie books and so on On Thursday I gave a bath for Pete and then groomed Gazer ready for pictures, and here is best shot of him! On Friday I went to Preston to see my friends Nora and Tiia who are studying in same school and same year course as me. They are having a training period at Myerscough College. First I took a train to Manchester Piccadilly and then I changed train. Finally at Preston I tried to find a bus station and when I got there I saw my bus just turning away from its platform. Then I had to wait half an hour for next one But yeah, we had a great time and made some new friends during the evening! Next morning we took a round around the Animal Academy and I liked it a lot! There were lovely cats and one huge rat like this! And many many other animals as well. I even had my own room for that one night and just for free - thank you everyone at Myerscough! I only had my cellphone with me, so here is few not-so-quality pictures of that visit! A fatty fatty rabbit Degus at the corners: So then I finally went to sleep! Yesterday we had to wake up at 6am and we headed for Blackpool Championship Dog Show. We took three dogs with us. I helped Sue through the day while she took dogs to ring. We got 1st, 2nd and 3rd place! Sydney is just 7 months old!
