We love to read a book before we head out to see our animal friends. Or better yet, take a book with you on your next zoo visit and read it WITH the animals! Seuss is a classic zoo book! And be sure to print this free If I Ran the Zoo game to play after you read the story. For kids who want to get up close with wild animals, I would recommend Life-Size Zoo: Wild Animals Touch and Feel book. Fun for ages 1 - 4 years. Fun for kids ages 3 - 8 years. A favorite in our house when the kids were younger was the almost wordless picture book Good Night, Gorilla by Peggy Rathman. Follow the zoo-keeper and gorilla through the zoo as they put the animals to bed. Zoo - ology by Joelle Jolivet is one of those books that kids will read over and over. Adults and older kids will enjoy all the fun animal facts shared in the appendix. Wonderful for kids ages 3 - 9 years. Zoo by Gail Gibbons is an interesting non-fiction look at what happens during a day at the zoo. Readers will get to see what happens from early morning until the zoo closes and the animals go to sleep. Recommended for ages 3 - 8 years. Pinkalicious and the Pinkatastic Zoo Day is another Early Reader book which will entice fans of the series to start reading on their own. See what happens when they visit the monkeys -- and then have to return to the zoo the next day! We are big fans of Little Critter books -- the kids find them very funny. The Capital Mysteries are a great series all around for kids starting early chapter books. In the Capital Mysteries 9: Kids who love mysteries will really enjoy The Secret Zoo. There seems to be a LOT of zoo-based mystery books: Yep, still one more! This early chapter book series is also a great one for kids. They help the zookeepers, meet the animals and solve a mystery before heading back home. This is one of those movies that has something for everyone in the family and it helps that the kids in the movie include a young daughter and a teenage son who both add a lot of fun to daily life. Be sure to print off the Zoo Scavenger Hunt to take with you too!

I thought only one Hold up one finger But now I see two! Hold up two fingers Momma and her baby With his head popping out Make a fist, have other hand pop out He holds on tight Hug yourself As they jump all about! Preschool Education “ Animals: Zoo Next up, I had the kids sit down for our flannelboard: Dear Zoo Based on the book by Rod Campbell. Now this book is definitely for the younger crowd, and my older kids dominated the younger kids. The only one that she got clearly was dog. Another reason why I like to mix things up, and do some younger books is that I often have bilingual families attending. The reason I know this? I had some kids guessing Spanish animal names instead of English. The book ends with an elephant as the last animal to guess, so that was another great intro to our next action rhyme. She swings her trunk from left to right. When she puts her feet on the ground. Definitely a great rhyming story; my and their favorite page is the page where hippos are drinking apple juice. The kids were very talkative during this story, and I definitely had to lower my voice to sometimes get their attention between rhyming couplets. One last song before our last book! You can hear the lions roaring at the zoo, ROAR! You can hear the lions roaring, you can hear the lions roaring You can hear the lions roaring at the zoo! Elephants trumpeting, zebra braying, monkey eeking Credit: Luckily, we own the big book version of this one, so I was able to have all the kids stand short ones walk towards the middle of the rug to see better, tall ones move to the sides while I held up the book, panning back and forth and doing most of the motions with them. But for me and my kids, it was time for the craft. They made lion masks that I found on my new favorite website, KidsSoup. Nothing beats little ones running out of the program room roaring at one another.

Nets, boots, gloves, pail, plastic shovel or scoop, hay, pictures of animals and zoo keepers also stuffed animals. Set out the materials. Children can pretend to be a zoo keepers working at the zoo and feeding the animals. Books of different animals that are found in the zoo. Teachers ask children to write their own stories of what the animals they will see at the zoo young children can just draw animals and then have them illustrate it. After they have done that have them share their books with the class, if they would like. The students will benefit from hearing the other stories as well as writing their own. The teacher should make the covers with 2 pieces of cardboard and glue the two edges together. Then have the children create a illustration on the cover.

Feathered Friends While studying farm animals Shauna R. Gold and orange yarn, and brown rice. Teachers pre cut a duck for all of your children. Then give each child a handful of gold and orange yarn cut into small pieces. The gold yarn is used for the beak of the duck. Then you use the orange yarn for the feet. The children then spread glue over the rest of the ducks body, pouring rice over the glue. Pour enough to make a thick coat. Dump the excess rice and BAM you have a feathered friend. I did the activity with my 3 and 4 year olds and they loved using the rice to make a animal. A lot of them only thought of rice as a delicious meal item. Young children can cut their own "Z" from yellow construction paper or it can be precut by adult. Brown construction paper pieces are ripped by children and glued onto the "Z". Next, eyes and mouth are drawn with the marker. Finally, clothes pins are clipped on bottom of the "Z" to make the legs of the giraffe. The children love making this craft.

Animal Face Sandwiches Children have fun creating animals for snack during this cool cooking activity by Melody R. Try these sandwiches during circus and zoo themes or for national pet week. Bread, peanut butter, raisins, pickles, carrots, plastic knives and a carrot grater. Let children make animal face sandwiches for sanctum. Give them each a slice of whole wheat toast and have them spread on peanut butter. Let them place raisins in the centers of their toast slices to make eyes and noses. Then give them thin slivers of pickles to add for whiskers and grated carrots to sprinkle on for fur. Paper plates, orange, yellow, brown and red yarn, yellow cotton balls, markers, crayons, glue and construction paper. Use the paper plate as the lions head. Have the children draw and color the face of the lion. Cut out ears from construction paper and glue them to the top of the paper plate. If desired, cut out the eyes of the lion, to make a mask! It can be used during a circus or zoo theme. All children sit in a circle on the floor. One child gets up and imitates an elephant with one arm dangling like a trunk, and the other arm dangling behind like a tail. The child then skips around the circle while everyone sings: The friend stands behind the first child in the same position holding hands, as if they are elephants in the circus. Everyone then continue to sing as the two elephants skip around them: Two elephants went out one day, Upon a spiders web to play, They had such tremendous fun, That they called for another elephant to come. This continues with each new elephant picking a friend until everyone is up. Then everyone sings for example: Five elephants went out one day, Upon a spiders web to play, They had such tremendous fun, But the web it broke and they all fell down. Everyone then falls to the floor. I have used this song with the kids at my "nanny music" club which I run for nannies and their charges, and I also used it in the nursery I managed in Edinburgh, Scotland. Adaptable for older children, who can play as a game of charades.

A bag of animal cookies. Teachers provide a bag of animal cookies and invite the children to take turns pulling a cookie out of the bag. Younger children can act out the noise the animal makes or movements that animal does. The other children get to guess what animal they have. Older children that understand charades can act out the animal any way they need to. Children 8 and up can make it as a game of pictionary, using a board or paper.
