Embed About the Book Hunting For Bears Genealogy Society collects and maintains large databases of early predominantly pre marriage records from all fifty states. We are currently processing these records and will have them on line as soon as they are ready. We do two things with these records: We no longer publish on microfiche but have a fairly complete inventory of our collection up to Two, surname searches of these large computer databases have been available to individuals since the late s via the U. Postal Service and now e-mail. We search our marriage indexes on a state by state basis and provide the results via e-mail or computer printout. Eighteen states of data were available for surname searches and were offered for sale on CDs in conjunction with Automated Archives c. Family Tree Maker c personal genealogy software bundled the H. The same collection was included in Ancestry. That was the collection, the collection dwarfs it in comparison. This book is part of that collection. It is maintained in a data base structure to provide the highest information density. Each marriage is contained in one line. Each party in the union is included in the alphabetical listing. Using the records in a database format and listing both participants in the alphabetical sort was so unique in that the U. Government has granted Hunting For Bears a c copyright on the collection in both print and later electronic and microform format. Oh, the name and logo, Russell, as Nick was called in his youth, loved puns. The newspaper genealogy column that he began writing in , Hunting Your Forebears, quickly became Hunting For Bears and the bear and hunter logo was created. When available, record location information such as county book and page number may be included as well as age, birth or death dates, race, gender and information about prior marriages.

Hazledine, aged twenty-five years and twenty-two days. Her remains have been taken to her former home at Battle Creek, Michigan, for interment. The deceased was born at Buffalo, N. She was married to the Hon. Hazledine December 24, , at Pine Bluff, Arkansas, and removed with her husband to Augusta, last autumn " to the home once rendered so cheerful by her presence, now so desolate by her unreturning absence. She was a Christian woman in the fullest sense. A devoted believer, her faith entered into and directed every act of her pure and blameless life " a life which was the best possible preparation for death. Possessed of the noblest qualities of mind and heart, modest and unassuming, faithful to every obligation, alive to every good work, she had won the love and esteem of all who knew her, and her untimely death has caused the deepest sorrow. To him whose life has been cheered, ennobled, by her companionship, this world can offer no consolation. He must look to Him who gave, and who hath taken away, for strength to bear his loss. The deepest, most heartfelt sympathy of his many friends is with him in this the hour of his great affliction. She hath done her bidding here, Angels dear! Bear her perfect soul above, Seraph of the skies " sweet love! Good she was, and fair in youth; And her mind was seen to soar, And her heart was wed to truth; Take her, then, for evermore " For ever " evermore. She has gone to her rest. Night and sorryow, and darkness, have forever passed from her. Whereas, It hath pleased God in his infinite wisdom, to call from earth to heaven the wife of our beloved friend William C. Hazledine, who departed this life on the 26th of March, Her sickness was brief, but severe, and death sudden; but from her godly walk we have no doubt she is reaping the award of a virtuous life where storms and sorrows can never come. She is gone from among us, and we deeply feel the loss, but we thank God for the glorious hope of the gospel: That when the stormy sea of life is passed, friends who have loved shall meet again. Therefore, be it Resolved, That while we murmur not nor rebel against the dispensation of a kind heavenly parent, we weep in heartfelt sympathy with the afflicted husband in this his sad bereavement; sorrowing not as those who have no hope, but fully believing that our loss is her eternal gain. Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Augusta Sentinel and Little Rock Republican, with a request to
