

Chapter 1 : World Food Programme - Empowered storytelling with Exposure

The World Food Programme works with governments and communities to reduce the impacts of disasters on their food security through resilience building, strengthening the capacities of social safety nets, emergency preparedness, analyses and early warning systems.

In , the programme was extended to a continuing basis. Goals and strategies[ edit ] A WFP armoured vehicle. The WFP strives to eradicate hunger and malnutrition , with the ultimate goal in mind of eliminating the need for food aid itself. The objectives that the WFP hopes to achieve are to: Food-for-work programmes help promote environmental and economic stability and agricultural production. Funding[ edit ] The WFP operations are funded by voluntary donations from governments of the world, corporations and private donors. Organization[ edit ] The WFP is governed by an executive board which consists of representatives from 36 member states. David Beasley is the current executive director, appointed jointly by the UN Secretary General and the director-general of the FAO for a five-year term. He heads the secretariat of the WFP. The European Union is a permanent observer in the WFP and, as a major donor, participates in the work of its executive board. The Logistics Cluster provides coordination and information management services to support operational decision-making and improve the predictability, timeliness and efficiency of humanitarian emergency responses. Where necessary, the Logistics Cluster also facilitates access to common logistics services. In , the WFP reached In emergencies, more than 50 million people were reached in order to improve their nutrition and food security. School meals were provided to Launched in September , P4P assists smallholder farmers by offering them opportunities to access agricultural markets and to become competitive players in the marketplace. The project spanned across 20 countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America and trained , farmers in improved agricultural production, post-harvest handling, quality assurance, group marketing, agricultural finance and contracting with the WFP. In fact, part of the response to the Haiti earthquake consisted of distributing food aid only to women as experience built up over almost 5 decades of working in emergency situations has demonstrated that giving food only to women helps to ensure that it is spread evenly among all household members. This response is activated under the following criteria: When human suffering in which domestic governments do or can not respond to adequately The United Nations reputation is under scrutiny When there is an obvious need for aid from the WFP The Emergency Response Classifications are divided as follows, with emergency intensity increasing with each level:
